THE CREDO
OF
REGIS COLLEGE

We believe in God.

We believe in the personal dignity of man.

We believe that man has natural rights which come from God and not from the state.

We are therefore opposed to all forms of dictatorship which are based on the totalitarian philosophy that the "total man" belongs to the state.

We believe in the sanctity of marriage and of the home — the basic unit of civilization.

We believe in the natural right of private property, but likewise that private property has its social obligations.

We believe that labor has not only rights but obligations.

We believe that Capital has not only rights but obligations.

We are vigorously opposed to all forms of "racialism" — persecution or intolerance because of race.

We believe that liberty is a sacred thing, but that the law, which regulates liberty, is a sacred obligation.

We believe in inculcating all the essential liberties of American Democracy and take open and frank issue with all brands of spurious "democracy."

We believe, briefly, in the teachings of Christ, and we, therefore, hold that morality must regulate the personal, family, economic, political, and international life of men if civilization is to endure.

The Very Reverend

Richard F. Ryan, S.J.

President of Regis College

Presidents Message

Regis College aims for leadership in Christian humanistic studies. Your College has considered that its mission is to provide this type of educational opportunity for you, because we judged you to have the capacity and desire for leadership characterized by the best in our intellectual and moral tradition.

To the goal of broad intellectual accomplishment which Regis aims for in its students is added moral maturity, so that the Regis graduate exemplifies "The True Christian, product of Christian education, the supernatural man who thinks, judges and acts, constantly and consistently in accordance with right reason, illuminated by the supernatural light of the example and teachings of Christ."

We are proud of you men graduating from Regis College, and our prayer is that all which is embodied in you as a result of your collegiate education will find full development for you in the years ahead. We would only urge you, as Regis College extended in its students and graduates, to exemplify becoming emotional maturity, a continual involvement with books, habits of accuracy, and the reflective mind of men who are responsible.

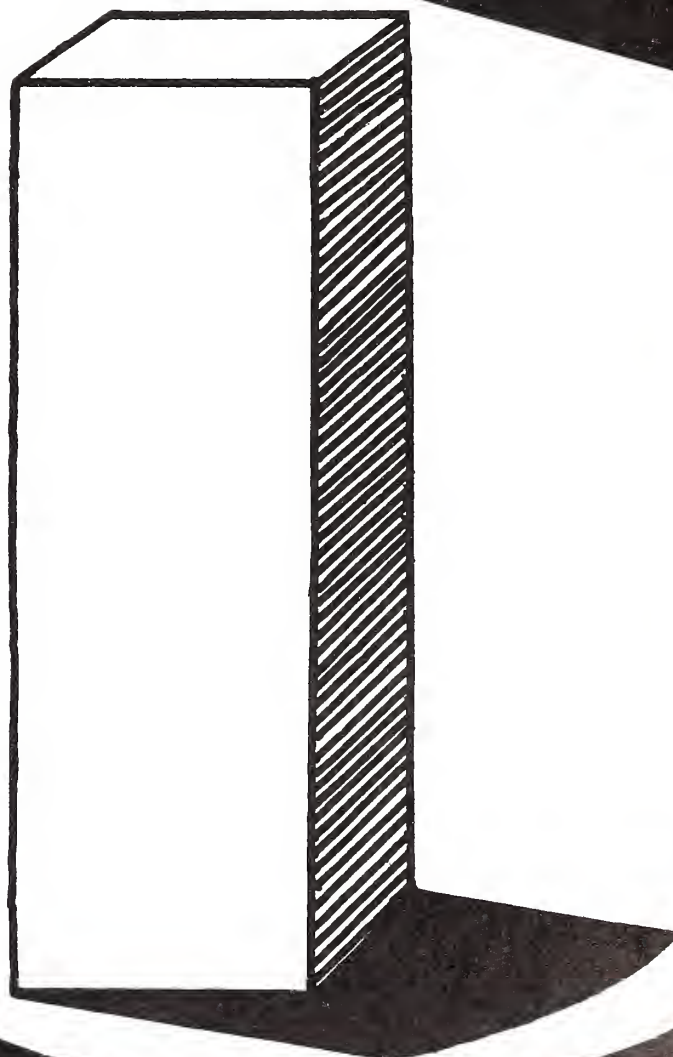

In the years ahead you will find the opportunity to grasp greater challenges than those we have experienced in the past. Less intelligent men, less courageous men might well miss these opportunities. We hope and pray you will use all capacities you have at your disposal, elevated and motivated by the grace of God which abides in men who are loyal to Christ.

Here stands the rare material of a young man, ready to be forged by the inspiring influences that surround him, the noblest of which forms and prepares him to accept the challenge of the future.

ACADEMICS

ADMINISTRATION

We, here at Regis, are much indebted to the administration, whose striving efforts, aimed at the improvement of the college and its facilities, have produced changes that can almost be termed fantastic. Not being limited to merely physical improvements, the present administration has effected numerous academic additions to the college's curriculum and academic functions, such as the Academic and Honor Convocations which are attended by dignitaries invited from areas of the United States.

Although these various improvements require an abundant amount of time for their realization, the administration is finding an unending source of personal academic, and spiritual aid of which the students often times find themselves in need. A constant source of strength and reassurance, its guiding hand never leaves the shoulder of the student through all his years at Regis.

Through the betterment of today's Regis student, much of the future academic reputation of the college will be indebted to the present administration.

Rev. Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J.
Academic Dean

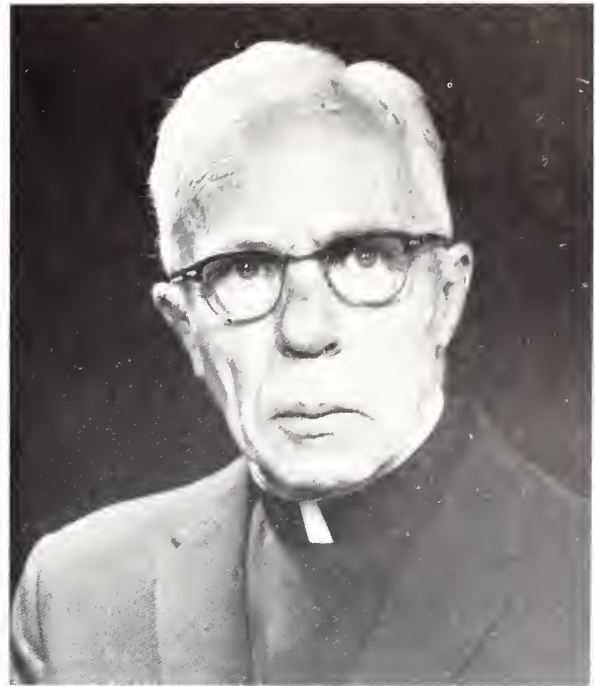

Since his appointment in July of 1960 to Academic Dean of the College Father Harry E. Hoewischer has more than fulfilled his duties. This fact is substantiated by the sweeping changes that are currently pervading the Regis College campus in academic areas. Fr. Hoewischer first came to Regis in September of 1959 as Dean of Student Affairs, an assignment which brought him into close contact with the students and their problems, and which prepared him excellently for the task which he now most ardently fulfills.

Mr. John V. Coyne
Assistant to Academic Dean

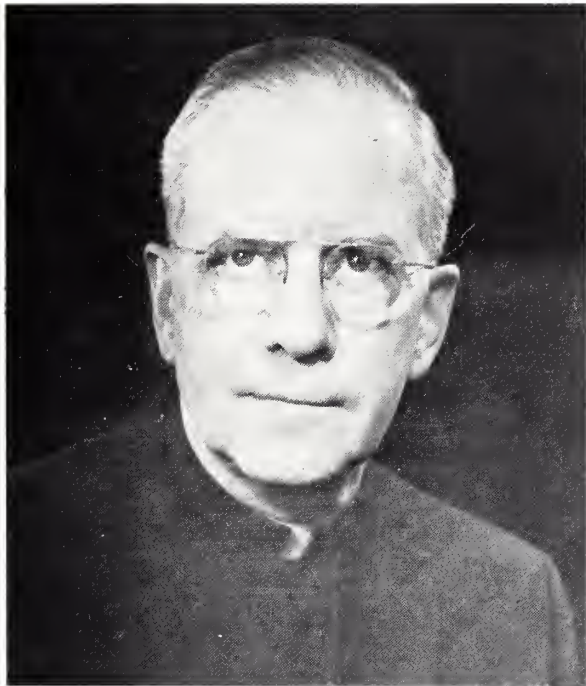

Mr. Coyne, as one of the busiest laymen on the Regis campus, is currently the assistant to the Dean of the college, as well as the Chairman of the Division of Commerce and Finance, in which he himself holds the professorship in the department of Business Administration. He first served in an administration capacity here at Regis upon his appointment to the Director of the Regis College Evening Division in 1951. He was appointed to his present position in 1958.

Rev. Bernard S. Karst, S.J. has been director of the resident halls since he acquired the position in 1939 and Dean of Men since 1960. Father Karst holds his A.B. and M.A. from St. Louis University.

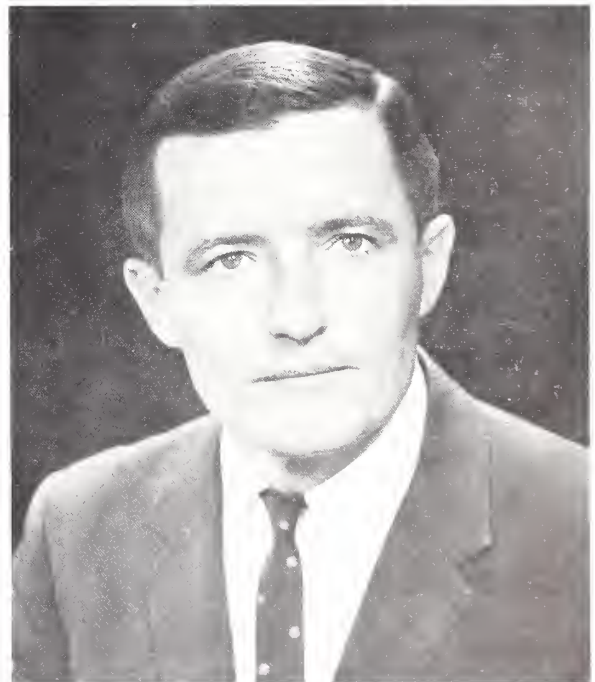

Rev. Bernard S. Karst, S.J.
Dean of Men

Reverend Thomas F. Sheehy, S.J.
Father Superior

Rev. Thomas F. Sheehy, S.J. came to Regis in February of 1959 in the capacity of O'Connell Hall Director, Father Superior, and Secretary of the Board of Trustees. He is now Father Superior of the Jesuit Community.

Mr. Martin C. Kelly came to Regis in the year 1956 at which time he assumed the position of Assistant to the President. He holds his B.S. from Creighton University and his LL.B. from Denver University.

Mr. Martin C. Kelly
Assistant to the President

Mr. Edward D. Stokes
Director of the Evening Division

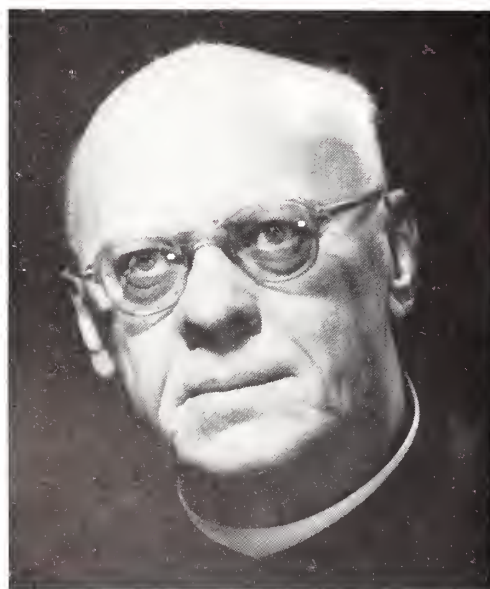

In the academic year 1960-1961, Mr. Edward Stokes was appointed Director of the Regis College Evening Division. The emphasis of concentration on studies has since become more evident in the evening courses due to the able supervision of Mr. Stokes.

Rev. John J. Gibbons, S.J.
Registrar

Rev. John J. Gibbons, S.J. became an assistant professor of philosophy at Regis in 1939 and registrar in 1950. Father Gibbons has an A.B. and a M.A. from Gonzaga University.

Rev. William F. Houser, S.J.
Father Minister and Treasurer

Rev. William F. Houser, S.J. came to the Regis Treasurer's Office in 1946. Father Houser was Minister of Campion before coming to Regis. He holds an A.B. and a M.A. from St. Louis University.

Mr. Eugene A. Donohoue
Director of Business and Finance

Mr. Eugene A. Donohoue came to Regis as Director of Business and Finance in August of 1960. Mr. Donohoue holds a B.S. from Regis, a B.A. from Mount St. Mary's in Cincinnati, a M.A. from Denver University, and he holds his C.P.A.

Mr. Philip Gauthier came to Regis as Director of Public Information in July of 1961. Mr. Gauthier served for nine years on the Corning, Iowa weekly newspaper and for one and one-half years as News Bureau and Sports Publicity Director at Creighton. He holds a B.S. from Creighton.

Mr. Philip Gauthier
Director of Public Information

Mr. Micheal McLaughlin
Director of Public Relations

Mr. Micheal McLaughlin became the Director of Public Relations in November of 1961. Before this time, Mr. McLaughlin was a Colorado rancher. He received his B.A. from the University of Colorado.

Mr. Earl Tannenbaum
Librarian

Mr. Earl Tannenbaum came to Regis as Librarian in September of 1961. He was formally the Assistant Humanities Librarian at Southern Illinois University. Mr. Tannenbaum holds a B.A. in English from Wisconsin, an M.A. in English from Chicago, and a M.A. in Library Science from Indiana University.

Mrs. Jessica Roehling
Executive Secretary of Development Office

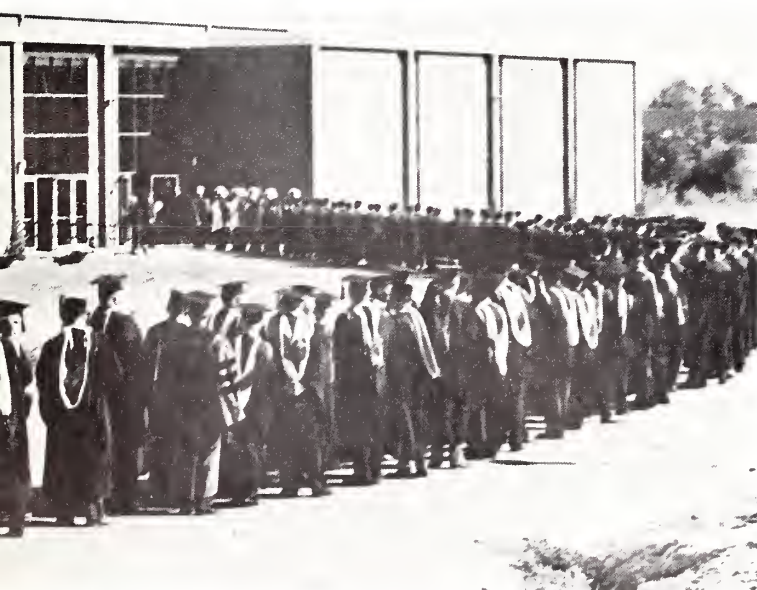

Mrs. Jessica Roehling came to Regis in September, 1961, as Executive Secretary of the Development Office. Mrs. Roehling attended Colorado Women's College, Denver University, and Colorado University Extension Center. She had been at Loretto Heights College for 8 years before coming to Regis.

Students partake in the Mass of the Holy Ghost preceding the Fall Convocation.

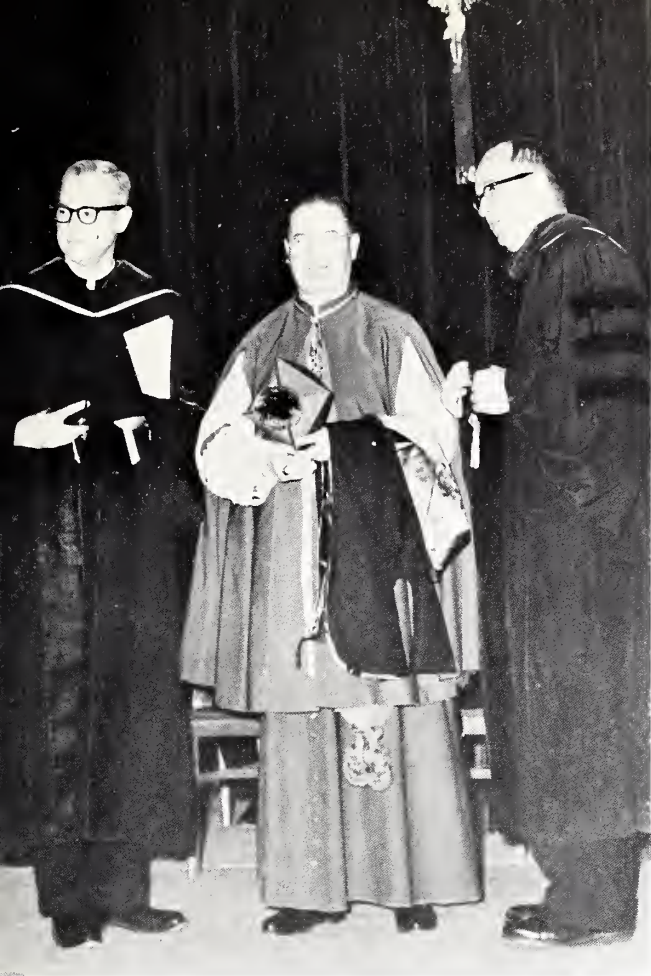

FALL CONVOCATION

Members of the graduating class and faculty are led by members of the Knights of Columbus to the convocation.

The academic year 1961-1962 was formally begun at Regis College with the 1961 Fall Convocation. Once again, the faculty and students renewed their minds and bodies to the endeavor of an intellectual life through the pursuit of knowledge.

Following the invocation by Monsignor Walter Canavan, and the salutation by the president of the college, the Very Reverend Richard F. Ryan, S.J. the convocation address entitled "A More Excellent Way," was given by the Very Reverend Edward J. O'Donnell, S.J. President of Marquette University. In the address, he pointed out that in the Jesuit schools of the 16th century, opportunities for education were opportunities for greatness, and this greatness was expected of the students. He explained that this expectation should be revived today in our schools if we are to cope with the insecurity of our society. Intellectual excellence is of value not only to ourselves, but for what it can mean for the cause of God. In concluding, Fr. O'Donnell stated that the future strength of Regis depends upon the intellectual achievements of her faculty and students.

The honorary degree Doctor of Laws is conferred on Bishop David Maloney, Auxiliary Bishop of Denver.

THE DIVISION OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE realizes its obligations which lie in the area of enabling the student to prepare himself vocationally, culturally, and morally to take an active and intelligent part in the execution and control of the business function in human endeavors. For those who will soon be active participants in the world of business, Regis adequately fulfills the traditions with a curriculum emphasizing the social and ethical values so important in our modern life.

"According to the book . . ."

ACCOUNTING, the language of business, has for its objective a thorough knowledge of accounting principles and procedure of recording progressions and retrogressions both accurately and completely, thereby attaining that grasp of business method that is expected of capable graduate students. Thus, the department wishes to foster that depth and breadth that will best fit him to enter the fields of business and to rise confidently to executive responsibilities. Should the student wish to further his higher education, the Accounting department prepares him for the creative maturity expected for admission to graduate schools of Business Administration.

The objective of the courses in BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION is to prepare students for effective service in business, and to develop in them habits of thought that make for continuing growth. Certain definite and fundamental purposes underlie instructional activities. These may be described briefly as follows: 1) To develop an appreciation and understanding of the human and material factors that make up the subject matter of business. 2) To give the students a greater knowledge, skill and resourcefulness which constitute a professional college training for the better opportunities in business. 3) To guide students in the selection of their business careers, and to aid graduates in the pursuit of their chosen business objectives.

Education does not end in the classroom, but begins there, attest David Coffey and Donald Ricken, two of the many Accounting majors who have taken advantage of the numerous occupational opportunities offered by Denver area business merchants.

Principles of the structural mechanics of the Glen Canyon Dam project and more important the far reaching beneficial results for the South-Western United States provided by its operation are explained by the project engineer.

Economic conditions are analyzed in the many economic forces and institutions as they endure through the maze of laws, practices, and controls. Our analysis after several depressions, recessions, and two World Wars is enriched in many areas: labor problems, pricing and marketing hazards, credit and monetary controls, fiscal policy, industrial enterprise and its regulation, and cyclical fluctuations in employment and national income. No solution today resolves tomorrow's complications, but we learn that the economic forces which most endure are those promoting community living along with personal well-being.

It is the objective of the Regis ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT to instill in the student the principles and values necessary to make an ethical evaluation of the economic conditions in view of the forces stated above. This objective is accomplished not only by lectures in the classroom and from outside experts in the field, but also by field trips sponsored by the department.

"Well, I'll be dammed"

THE DIVISION OF HUMANITIES strives to enrich the student through a basic appreciation of art, language, music, and literature. In order to develop the student in these areas, it has been the tradition of Regis as a liberal arts institution to promote these studies. The acquiring of such intellectual appreciation is basic for any student desiring to develop into a well-rounded man, and Regis has proudly accepted the challenge of providing the necessary foundation.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT majors are provided the opportunity to analyze the works of major English and American writers, and are presented an outline of the development of literature in the English language from Beowulf to our own day. The students cultural development is enlarged through intelligent and personal experience of some of the valuable literature of our language.

This year under the able direction of Rev. Robert Boyle, S.J., the English Department presented a series of discussions on controversial literary problems in cooperation with KBTV, Channel 9, in Denver. The series, ranging from the imagery of Shakespeare to the metaphorical rhythm of Hopkins, was presented each Saturday afternoon from 4:30 to 5:00 P.M. These programs gave ample opportunity to other colleges and universities in the area to join with Regis students in displaying their individual endeavors in the field of literature.

Earlier in the year the department was privileged to have the Rev. Harold C. Gardiner, literary editor of America, present on campus. In an informal discussion with the members of the student body, Fr. Gardiner stressed the importance of using discretion in the critical analysis of literature. He stated that in order that literature attain its full appreciation, the reader must fully submit himself to the contemplation of the work, without bringing to the work an antagonistic attitude. In other words, the reader must initially be a receptor. He concluded with the remark that the only truly educated man is a well-read one.

The English department has truly shown significant strides in the advancement and publication of the college, as well as creating an atmosphere which leads to the development of the liberal man.

The intense heat radiated by the television lights coupled with the sporadically heated debate rendered participants somewhat withered and definitely parched.

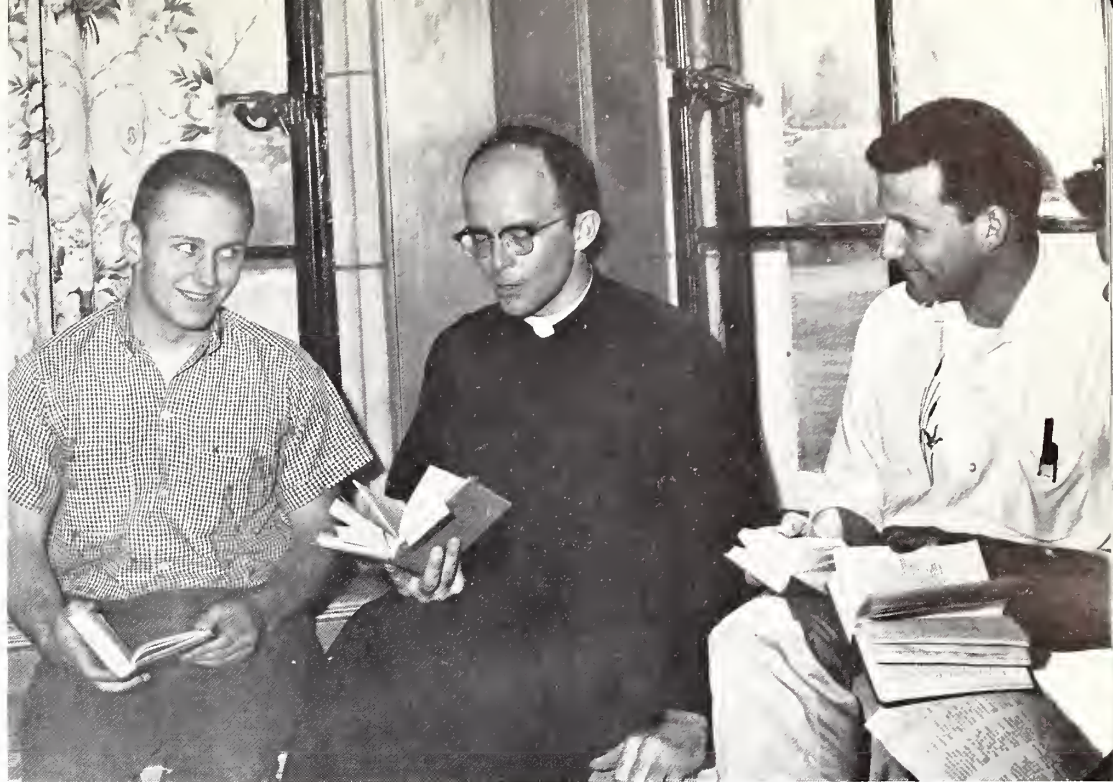

On the annual Regis T.V. series, sponsored by KBTR-TV, Rev. Robert Boyle, S.J. and a guest Mr. Donald Klene of the Regis College English Department and a guest member from the United States Air Force Academy English Department debate the relative literary positions offered by the behavior of the Moor, Othello.

Rev. Harold Gardiner, literary editor of America, discusses the analysis of literature.

“The rosy fingered dawn” . . particularly the morning after . . .”

Over twenty centuries after its birth, the impact of classical law, architecture, custom and thought upon Western culture is still, in many ways, the basis of our civilization. In today's world, with its glorification of the material and earthly possessions of man, Christian education rightly maintains and emphasizes the importance of a familiarity with, and appreciation for the tradition of the Ancients.

Under the supervision of Rev. Matthew Lynch, S.J., the DEPARTMENT OF CLASSICAL LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE provides courses in Latin and Greek to acquaint the student with ancient culture, and to discipline the mind to a method of study. The ancient classics, the mythology of the Greeks and Romans, and the literary influence of their philosophical systems are just a few of the areas of study which supplement the study of the language itself. The study of Latin is considered to be of such importance that it is required of all students striving for an A.B. degree. Although not required of other students, it is highly recommended.

It has always been the desire of Matthew R. Lynch, S.J. to foster in his students a basic understanding of the classical languages without which a complete comprehension of the English language is almost impossible.

Rev. Matthew Lynch gives a basic understanding of Latin to students in one of his day classes.

The objective of the DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC is to further the appreciation of the Regis student in the area of the fine arts. Living in a world that tends to shy away from such important intellectual pursuits, it has been the hope of the music department that through endeavors on their part, more students will realize the importance "real" music has on their life as a liberally educated man.

The courses basically involve the study of the classical forms; Sonata, Sonatina, Rondo, and Theme and Variations. Having become acquainted with the musical forms, the student then studies the works of the composers of the different periods, namely, Classical, Romantic, and Modern. By comparing the different composers, and by "letting music flow into the ear," the student soon becomes competent in lending his "intellectualized ear" to any symphony with the knowledge that he can truly enjoy the artist and his work.

You mention Richard Rogers once more, and I'll put you in my theology class!

This, little friends, will be a relatively easy course through which you will attain minimal competence in relation to Stravinsky, Mozart, Brahms, Bach, Schumann, Debussy, Wagner, and Beethoven. I don't know what we'll concentrate on in the second class.

"If you insist on asking questions, you'd better use a vivid verb . . . objection overruled!"

Advance students enrolled in the department of speech hold an informal discussion under the supervision of Mr. Bain, the head of that department.

A Catholic gentleman must be prepared to voice his opinions and general knowledge without fault or hesitation. Thus, the objectives of the SPEECH DEPARTMENT are to prepare the Regis student in the area of public speaking. Regis has long been known for the quality of speakers and debators she has produced, and this fact has been substantiated by the numerous speech and debate honors that have been won by her prodigies. Once again this year, the speech department was effective in capturing a number of first places in tourneys in the surrounding area. It is indeed pleasing to note the exhilarating interest that has been nurtured by the department.

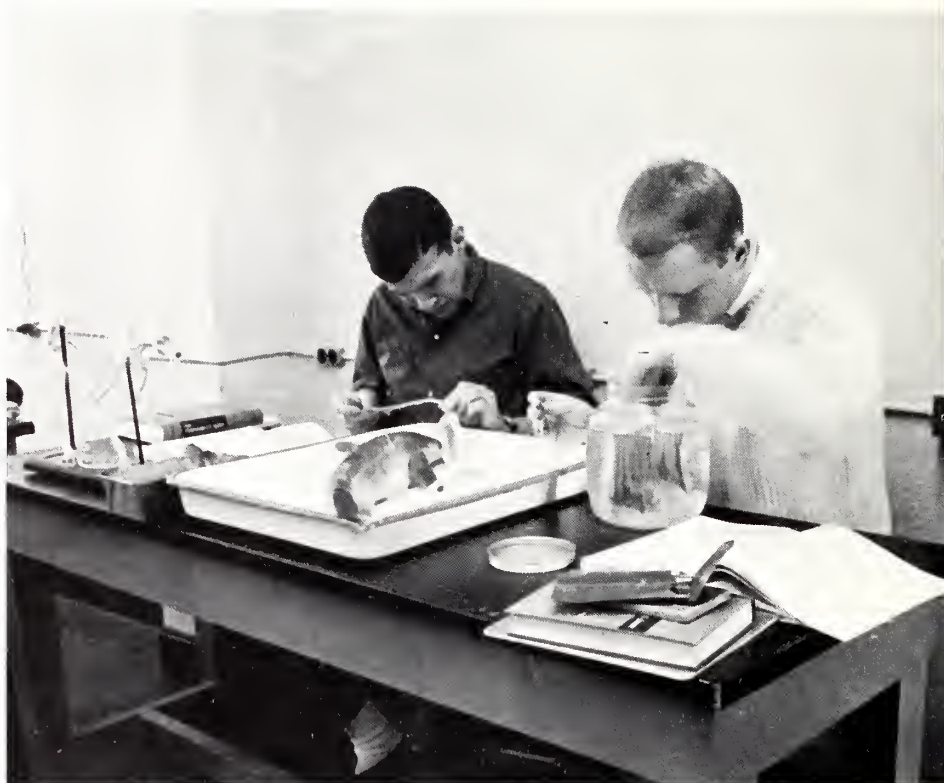

In an age of tremendous scientific advancements, those preoccupied with developments inherent in the DEPARTMENT OF MODERN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE have recognized the need for communication has become apparent. Communications involve a vast field of subjects, but the mastery of modern languages assuredly occupies a pinnacle in the direction of the intelligent man toward knowledge of his fellow man. A reading knowledge, written and oral expression through a functional mastery of grammar and pronunciation, and a knowledge and an appreciation of the cultural background of the language the student wishes to study, are the goals of the department of modern language. The student has the opportunity to study French, German, Russian, or Spanish, and with the aid of the new language lab, a fluent speaking ability can be obtained.

A Regis student, in order to foster the fluency in the language of his choice, is offered numerous tapes of varied content for his personal endeavor.

Pilot Elden Cain directs 20 stalls from control tower.

THE DIVISION OF NATURAL SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS is concerned with an ever-changing field in which the search for the unknown, as supported by known facts, is upheld as the traditional quest of the student. Whether mixing chemicals or studying motion, learning anatomy or theorizing modern algebra, the science student always strives for a knowledge of the world around himself, and for ways of bettering it.

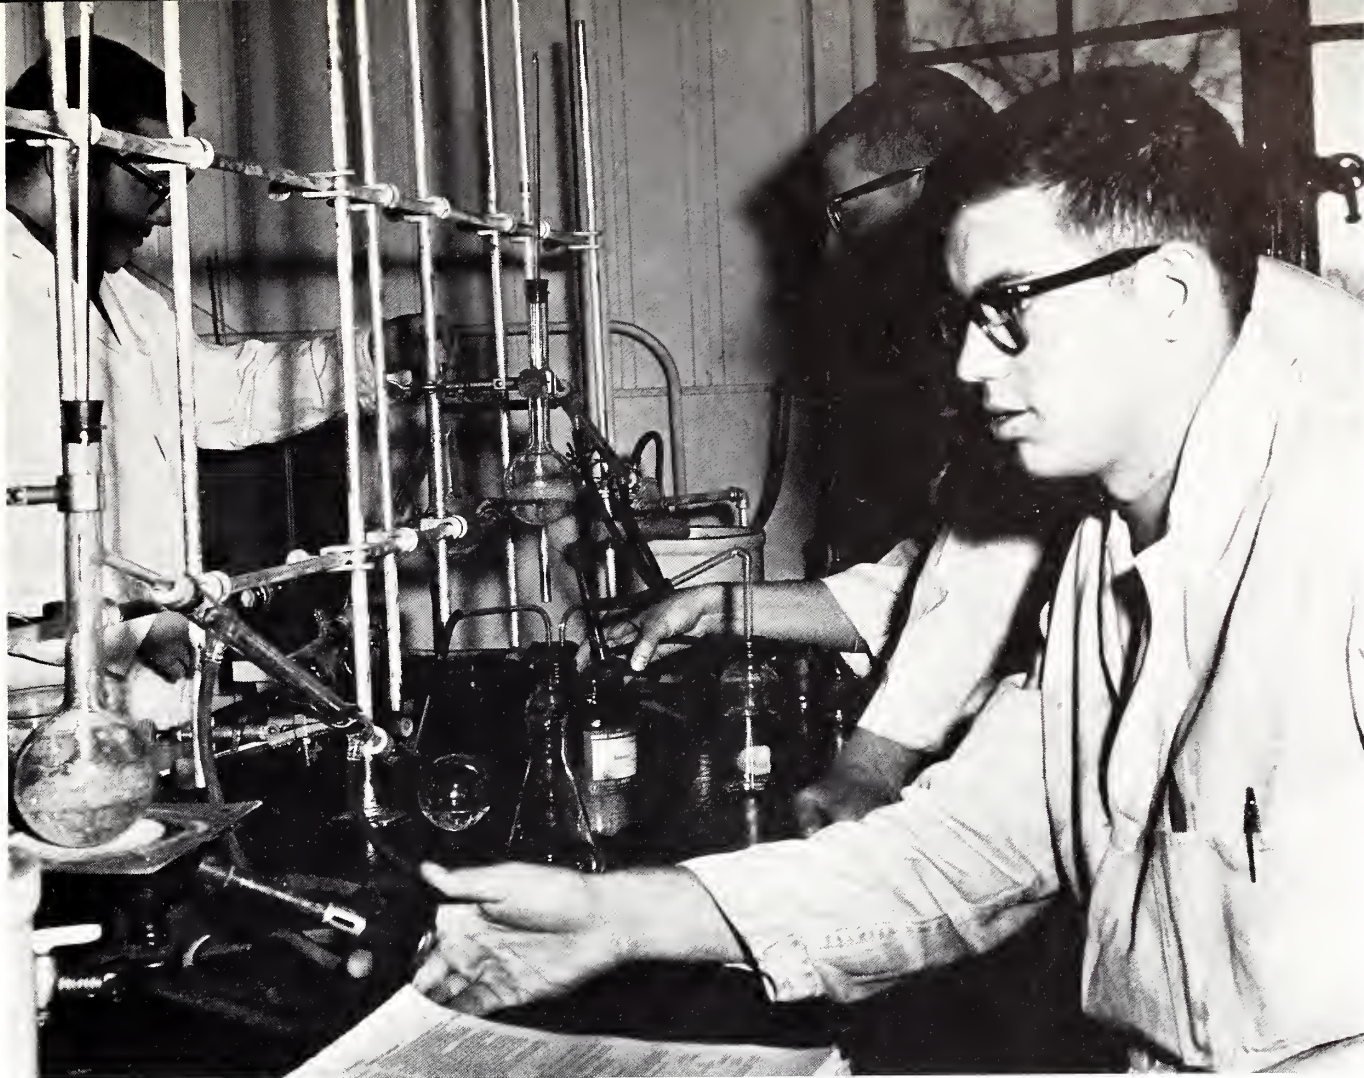

A substantial amount of time in the laboratory is afforded pre-professional students so that they might gain practical experience following a thorough knowledge of the theory of biology.

The BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT has a dual purpose; it is both cultural and professional. The student in general education is offered a survey in the general principles of biology, the contribution of biology to the human welfare, and investigation of practical applications to human problems from selected areas of the biological sciences. Pre-medical and pre-dental students, and biology majors are offered adequate courses to meet their individual entrance requirements into graduate school. Such students are offered extensive training in laboratory procedure, and a sequence of courses covering the general, developmental, anatomical, genetical, and histological aspects of zoology. Students benefit from many activities such as slide-preparation, and the execution of small amounts of research under the supervision of the professors in the department.

Dave Sussman and Michael O'Leary observe as dye is injected into the rabbit by Dr. Alvin Earle and Rev. Elmer Trame S.J. in order that the macrophages (a type of engulfing cell) will be stained for easy identification.

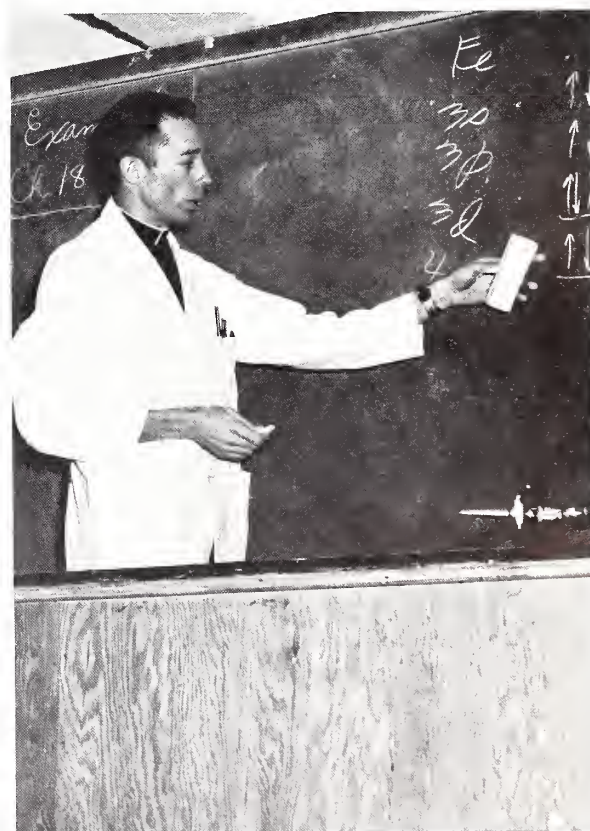

A maze of equipment confronts the youthful chemists, much of which must be self-constructed, in order that a properly executed experiment might be brought to its conclusion.

In the CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT, exactness and care in laboratory technique, and strict attention to mathematical development of theory, are considered essential. For those students preparing themselves for graduate work in chemistry, the department offers a Bachelor of Science in Chemistry. For the benefit of pre-medical students as well as others who desire a solid background in chemistry, the department offers a course of instruction that leads to a bachelor of science with a major in chemistry. While the work required for this degree does not demand intensive work as must be achieved for the professional degree, nevertheless the requirements are comparable to that of a major in any of the other natural sciences.

The department, in its endeavors to produce outstanding men in its field, has become one of the leading schools in the caliber of men it has produced for post-graduate schools. Among the chemistry majors, many have achieved great success upon graduation from Regis, and the department is to be congratulated in its upholding of the traditions of the school.

In order that the elementary constituents of matter may not be simply a vague notion for the student, Rev. William T. Miller devotes special care to a thorough investigation into the very nature of chemical unity.

One of the greatest advantages of attending Regis lies in the personal communications between faculty member and student who together solve many of the difficulties that daily confront the scholar.

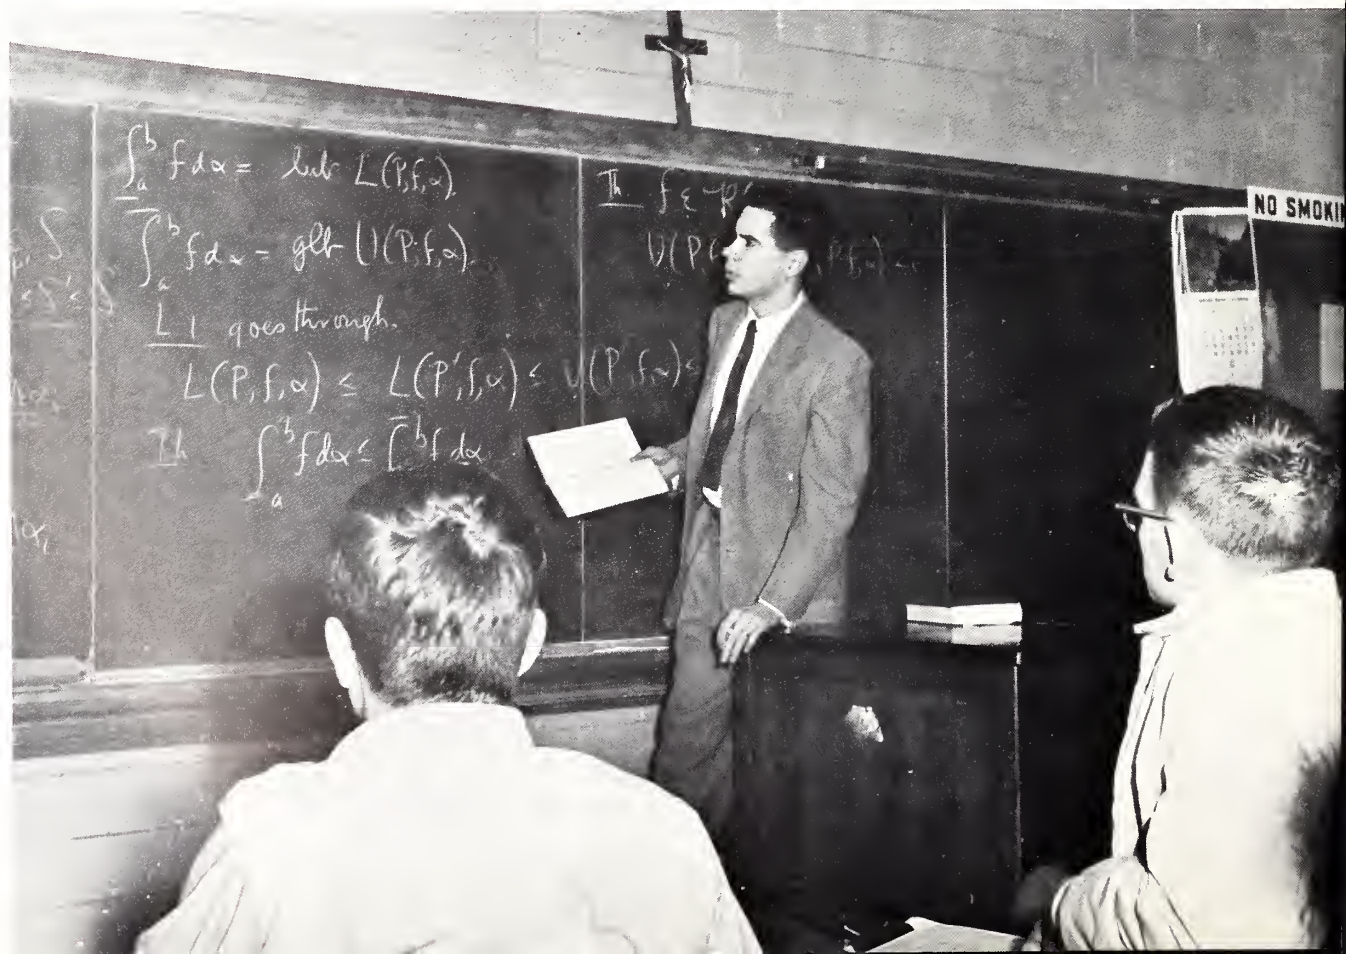

The MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT offers the student a complete curriculum leading to the concentration of a major in mathematics. Courses are chosen to give the student the mathematical background necessary in any field of science. The quality of work demanded from all members of the class must be on a level with those whom the class was intended—that is, those students interested in a mathematics major.

It should be noted, however, that regardless of a student's primary interest, the department and its wide range of courses readily provides the basis for a thorough acquaintance with the language of formulation. Whether a student wishes to major in the arts, business, or science, he needs a certain amount of mathematics to cope with problems that arise in his everyday living. This area of need is adequately fulfilled by the department in its primary courses.

The credit for the sound mathematics department that exists at Regis can be found in its faculty, which constantly experiments with new mathematical and pedagogical approaches in both pure and applied mathematics.

The intricate steps employed in the derivation of formulae are analyzed so as to enable the student to integrate mathematical terms discriminately.

Closely supervising an electrical voltage transmission experiment performed by students of Marycrest High School, Regis student George Leone has found his teaching experience an excellent opportunity to acquire facility in the communication of scientific facts to others both clearly and accurately.

Although the objective of the PHYSICS DEPARTMENT is to prepare the student for post-graduate work in physics, no physics major is actually conferred. Rather, the department recommends that the student who is preparing for graduate work in physics, major in mathematics. Nevertheless, the courses offered in this field are up to the common standard for any field of physics which the student may later choose to enter.

The undergraduate training is designed primarily to prepare the student to enter industry immediately after graduation. The combination of theoretical instruction and laboratory practice given in the Department of Physics is aimed to give him a broad view of the important principles underlying physical phenomena and to train him to record, analyze and interpret carefully.

Students are required to record all intermediate steps that occur during the course of an experiment in order that an accurate verification at its conclusion will find the student in possession of the necessary figures by which to trace the "why" and the "how" of scientific laws and theories.

THE DIVISION OF THE SOCIAL SCIENCES, in light of man's past and present environment, concerns itself with the traditions that have been unfolding since the twilight of civilization, and inculcates this into the furthering of the traditions of Regis: that of graduating well-rounded, liberally minded students. Through the studies in this department, the student learns from and of past mistakes, and from this learning prepares himself to meet the problems of the present and future.

Student Bob Sims exemplifies the objectives of the department while student teaching at Lake Junior High.

The objectives of the EDUCATION-PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT are to offer the student a knowledge of human behavior that will enable him to understand the conduct of others and more wisely direct his own, and to give the student a strong background in principles of education based on the Christian way of life. The courses offered by this department are coordinated in a manner that enables the prospective teacher to develop an understanding not only of teaching methods, but of handling students' personal problems as well.

The department offers various programs for undergraduate students who intend to be secondary school teachers. The department regards state certification as a necessary qualification for elementary and secondary teaching, and thus, all students, aside from minoring in education, must take a minimum of 20 hours to become certified.

Dr. Fredrick Sloan acquaints his Friday evening class, with the methods and objectives of elementary teaching.

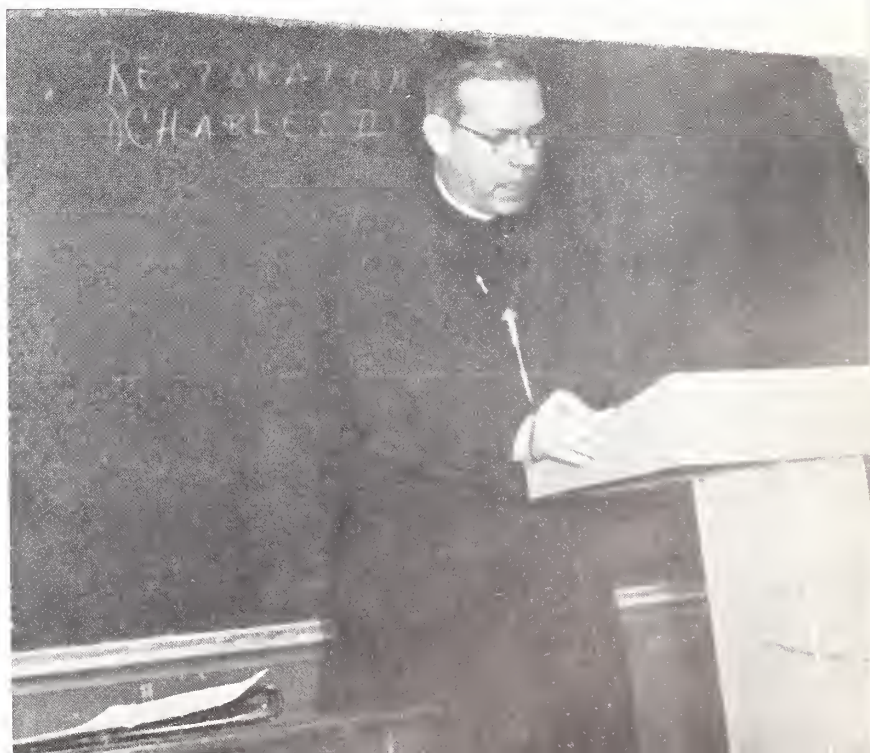

Mr. Bernard M. Sheehan, a correct contender in holding that an unread man is an uneducated one, casually reviews an issue of THE NEW ENGLAND QUARTERLY in the company of two historically minded students.

To know history is to know the real man. The civilizations who have created Western and Eastern civilization fostered ideals and conducts of life. The historian attempts to discover and understand the life, the government, the wars, and the religion of these ancestors of ours, and their own artistic creations and literature.

A general acquaintance with the development of Western Christendom is considered by the HISTORY DEPARTMENT to be a necessary part of the education of any Christian gentleman. The department is further concerned with aiding the student in gaining a deeper realization of man's attempts to solve his problems in the past and his endeavors to meet the problems of the present and future in light of the progress men have made before them.

At Regis, the history major is able to enter any profession with a real liberal arts preparation. Whether this be the study of law or medicine, the learning of business arts, or the contemplation of literature, the history department will indeed prepare him for perfection in these quests (for indeed all events do take place historically and must be studied in their historical context).

Having returned several years ago from an extensive tour of the British Isles, Rev. Harold Stansell accumulated a large amount of class material which ordinarily would escape the scope of a course in European History.

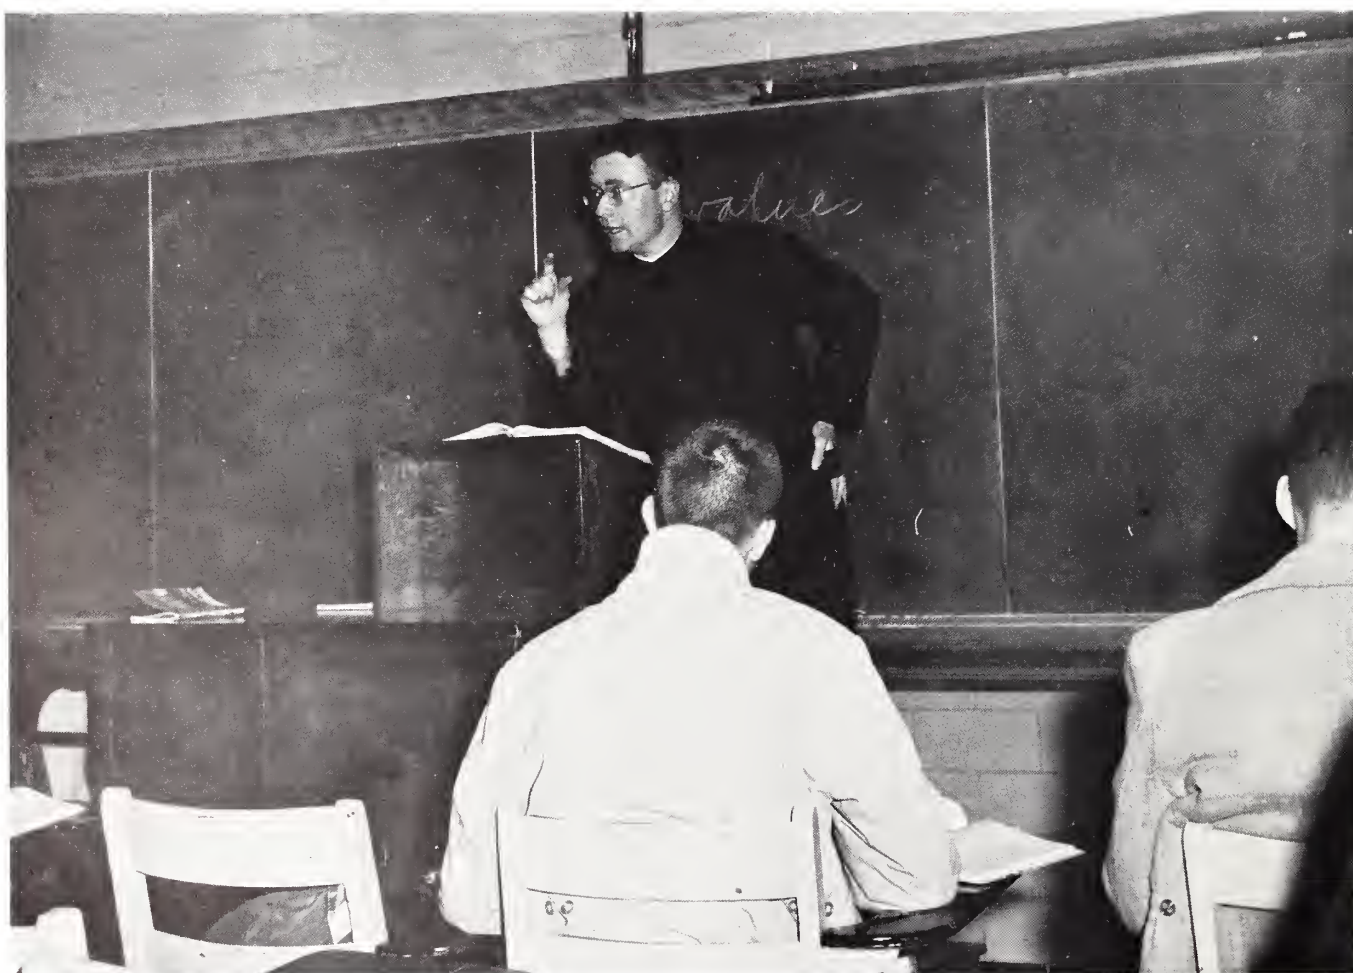

Mr. Endres discusses current sociological problems informally with one of his students in the Student Center.

To provide instruction for the analysis and comprehension of society and its problems is the purpose of the SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT. The sociology student investigates social relationships not only as they are, but as they should be in the light of man's nature. The study of sociology offers the student a fine background for further studies in law, social service, crime prevention, counseling, personnel work and public administration.

Sociologists study human relations by means of objective empirical methods to learn the how and why of man's behavior. The purpose of sociology is to help men understand themselves and others, to recognize the importance of the human groups in which they live and the entire society of which they are a part. The liberally educated man today must possess basic knowledge of his own society, both how it functions, and how it fails to function.

Father Casey in his class lecture stresses the norms and values pertaining to man.

THE DIVISION OF PHILOSOPHY AND THEOLOGY impresses upon the student's mind intellectual habits and moral values central to a Christian education. True to the tradition of a Jesuit education, the earnest student obtains all the principles necessary to live the life of an outstanding Catholic layman.

Due to the values to be attained by the study of philosophy and the importance of having a strong philosophical background in dealing with today's problems, the study of philosophy is required for all Regis students. The DÉPARTEMENT OF PHILOSOPHY strives to give its students a comprehensive insight into reality and an explanation of the real in terms of its ultimate causes. The study of philosophy further stimulates the talent for speculative and practical thought and leads the student to a more complete understanding of being, man, and God. Finally, philosophy provides the student with a rational basis for true Christian wisdom.

The purpose of the THEOLOGY DEPARTMENT is to introduce the college student to the truths of his faith and to acquaint him with the methods by which religious and scientific knowledge is attained. Through this, the Department hopes to enable the student to keep his religious formation on an intellectual level with the rest of his cultural development, and to provide a firm foundation for the apostolic endeavors which are an integral part of the mature Catholic life. Proof of the students desire to be mentally and morally responsible in facing the ethical decisions of his later life was evidenced this year by the significant number enrolled in the first moral Theology class to be taught at Regis.

Exacting and forceful, the Rev. Edward L. Maginnis demands of his students a thorough knowledge of human morality and the absolute acceptance of its corresponding responsibilities.

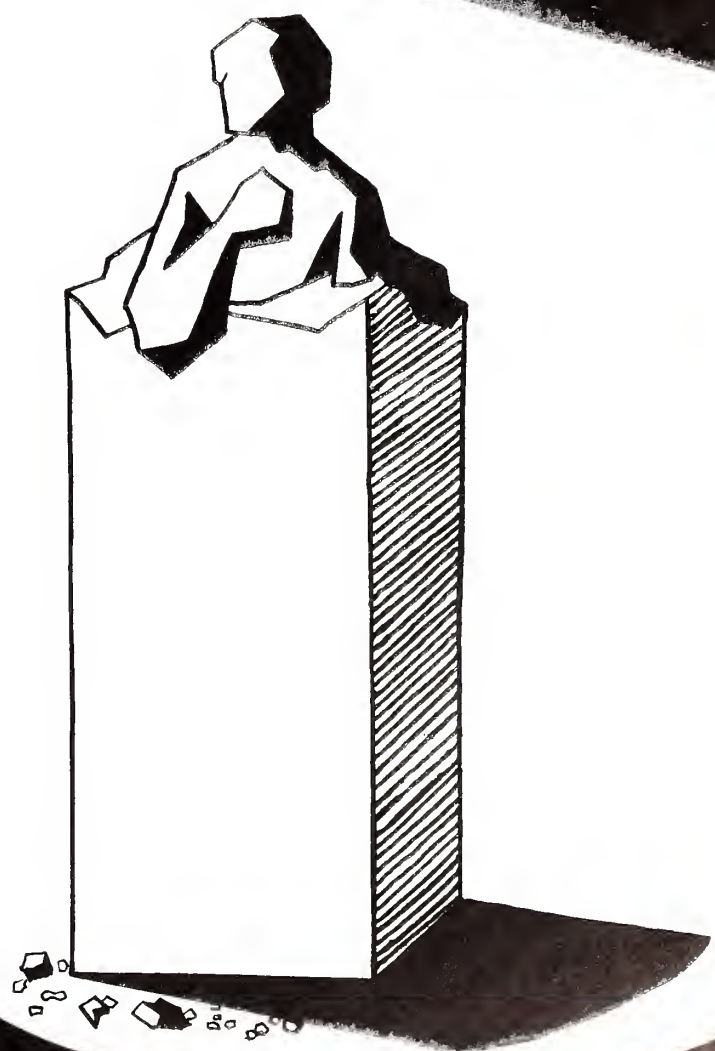

Constantly seeking to improve the aims and ideals of the educative processes, the Rev. Harry Klocker is shown correcting the galley sheets of his latest book THOMISM AND MODERN THOUGHT, another significant contribution to his field.

Before him stand the men, the sculptors, in whose hands have been placed the tools with which to mold him, and which oft-times become blunt in the process.

FACULTY

HUMANITIES

The man who leaves Regis College on graduation day will have with him the background of language and literature which are an important part of his heritage. Among these courses are those for the liberal arts student in Greek and Latin. To develop him in understanding, discrimination, and expression, the courses in English and Speech are presented to preface the student's future with a knowledge of the English, American, and in particular, Catholic contributions to world literature and culture. Finally, there are those subjects in modern languages that serve as an introduction for the student to French, German, Spanish, and Russian writing and thinking.

Rev. Robert R. Boyle, S.J.
*Chairman of the Division
 Head of the Department of English Language and Literature
 Assoc. Professor of English*

Rev. Robert R. Boyle, S.J., was appointed head of the Regis College English Department in 1955, shortly after receiving his Ph.D. from Yale University. Since then he has been instrumental in making drastic revisions in the scope and direction of his department, and has attracted both national and international attention with some of his views and methods. His book, "Metaphor in Hopkins," published in 1961, has won wide acclaim for its analysis of metaphorical rhythm. Besides a Ph.D., Father Boyle also holds the following degrees: A.B., M.A., Ph.L., and S.T.L.

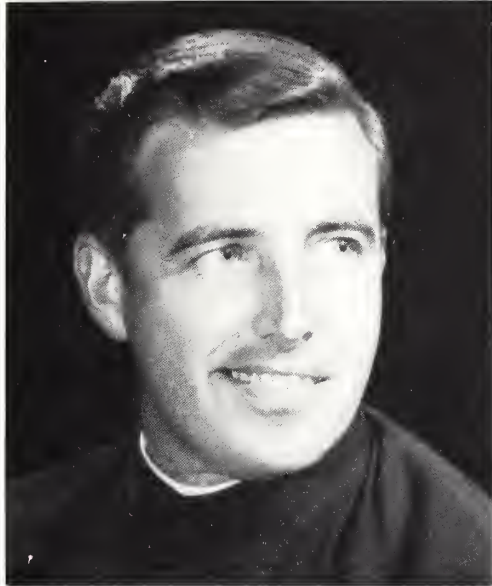

Rev. Matthew R. Lynch, S.J.
*Head of the Department of Classical Languages and Literature
 Instructor in Classical Languages*

Rev. Matthew R. Lynch, S.J. provides the classical foundation for a liberal education. He has obtained an A.B., M.A., and S.T.L. from St. Louis University. Before coming to Regis, he taught at both Marquette and St. Louis University High Schools.

Mr. Lucien O. Pichette came to Regis in 1960 as an instructor in the foreign languages. Mr. Pichette, who is responsible for the installing of a language lab on the Regis campus, holds degrees of A.B., M.A., and Ph.B.

Rev. Richard F. Bocklage, S.J.
Instructor in English

Mr. Lucien O. Pichette
*Head of the Department of Modern Languages and Literature
Instructor in Foreign Languages*

Rev. Richard F. Bocklage, S.J. joined the Regis English Department in 1957. Holding the degrees of A.B. and M.A., Father Bocklage also taught at Creighton Preparatory School in Omaha.

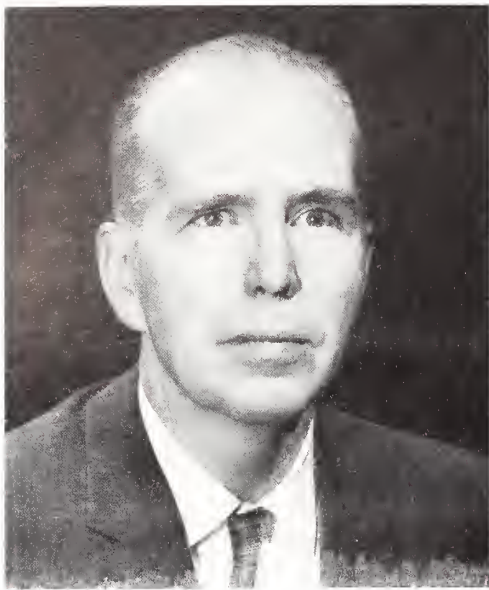

Rev. John F. Lyons, S.J.
Asst. Professor of English

Rev. John F. Lyons, S.J. joined the Regis English Department in 1955 after teaching at Regis High School. Father Lyons holds an A.B. from Regis and a M.A. from St. Louis University.

Rev. Louis A. Bloomer, S.J.
Professor of English

Rev. Louis A. Bloomer, S.J. became a member of the English Department in 1943. Father Bloomer holds an A.B. and a M.A. in Philosophy from St. Louis and a M.A. in English from Creighton.

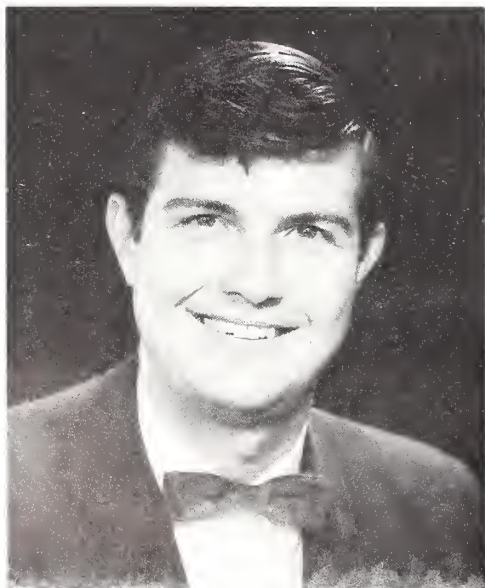

Mr. John L. Gribben
Instructor in English

Mr. John L. Gribben joined the faculty immediately upon his graduation from Regis College in 1961. He is an instructor in the English Department, and has an A.B. degree.

NATURAL SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS

Included in the Division of Natural Science and Mathematics are the departments of Chemistry, Biology, Mathematics, and Physics. With its object primarily professional, the division prepares the science majors for post-graduate work in any of the four departments. Also, the courses offered, fulfill all ordinary entrance requirements for professional schools. Throughout the years, this division has been sighted for the quality of its graduates. Such studies as Vertebrate Histology, Qualitative Organic Analysis, Advanced Calculus, and Nuclear Physics are included in the list of courses in these departments.

Rev. Fred T. Daly, S.J.
Chairman of the Division
Head of the Department of Mathematics
Assoc. Professor of Mathematics

Rev. Fred T. Daly, S.J., as an Associate Professor of Mathematics, has had a great deal of experience with colleges and universities in his career. He has been associated with no less than eight as either a student or a professor. Father Daly began his studies at Rockhurst College, and later graduated from St. Louis University, receiving first a Bachelor of Arts, and later his Masters Degree. He went on to do advanced studies at both Cornell and Notre Dame Universities. He taught at Gonzaga, Creighton, and Marquette before coming to Regis.

The Regis Faculty: dedicated to the pursuit of excellence.

As students of a Jesuit college, we realize the importance of excellent guidance throughout the years of our formal education. The Regis faculty members are the men to whom we look for this guidance; men who have dedicated their lives to the development of integral Catholic gentlemen. Through careful observance of the activities surrounding him, the student soon discovers that the jobs their professors perform only begin in the classroom. For these individuals have realized that education is not limited to this one area, but embraces all that furthers the development of the mind and personal character of man. Thus, these men are seen in all phases of college life; acting as moderators, administrators, advisors, lecturers, confessors, organizers, and other positions as well.

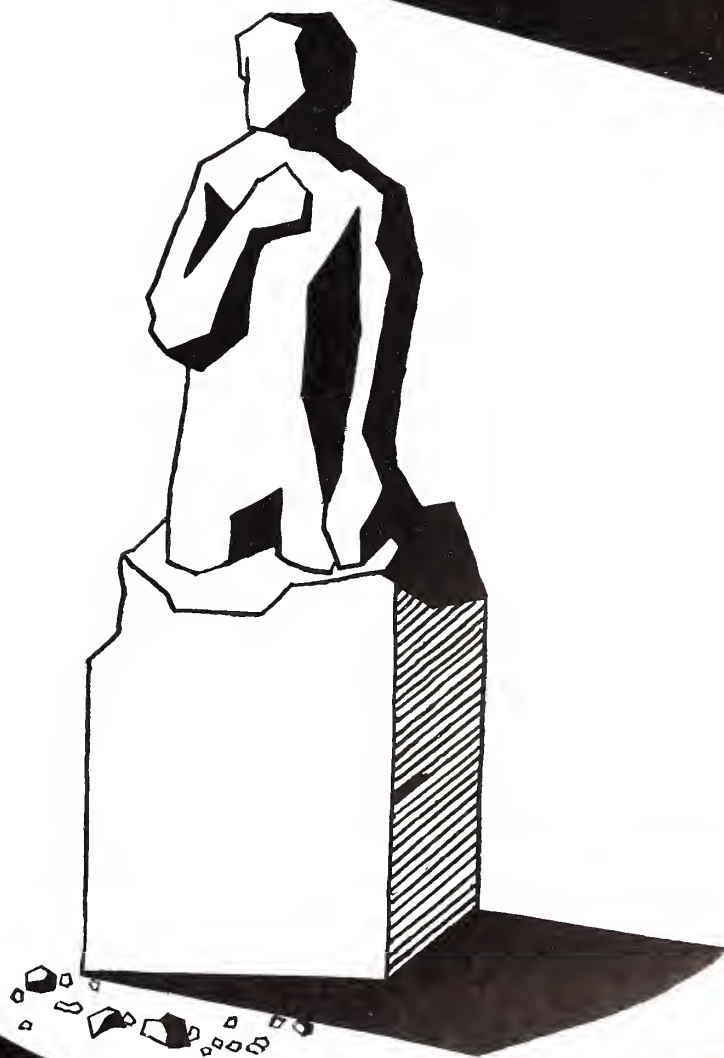

Regis means many things to a student; educational strivings, making of new friends, home away from home, development of social character; but whatever, the student realizes that Regis must sometime, someday, somehow affect a change in each individual. And one of these changes involves personal character, which is encouraged by the good example of his associates. The Regis man eventually comes to realize the value of the example set for him by his professors. He is proud to see that the faculty recognizes the importance of the example they demonstrate in their lives both in and out of the classroom.

Regis is a tradition—a tradition which is primarily established by its faculty. The RANGER is dedicated to the heritage that lives today in Regis, a heritage which is created by these men. Dedication, devotion, and example make up their lives, and recognition of them is of essence in this, the 1962 RANGER.

Here he stands—the Unfinished Man—upon whom, during the process of his formation, work ceases momentarily that all may recognize his meritorious scholarship, leadership, and service over and above that required of him.

AWARDS

1962 HONORS CONVOCATION

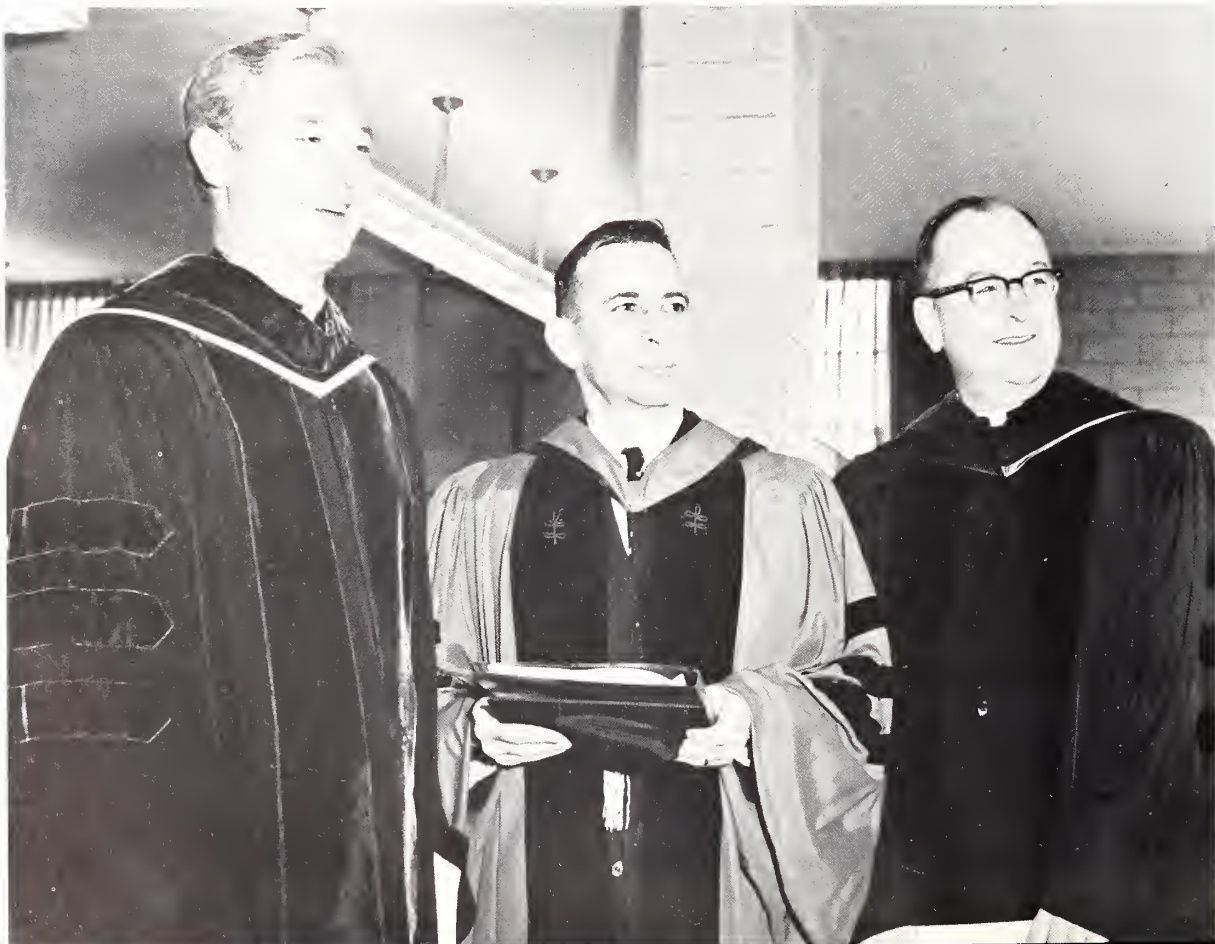

Seniors, are extended the privilege of familiarizing themselves with the academic robes as they are led to the convocation by the Procession Marshal, Rev. Edward L. Maginnis.

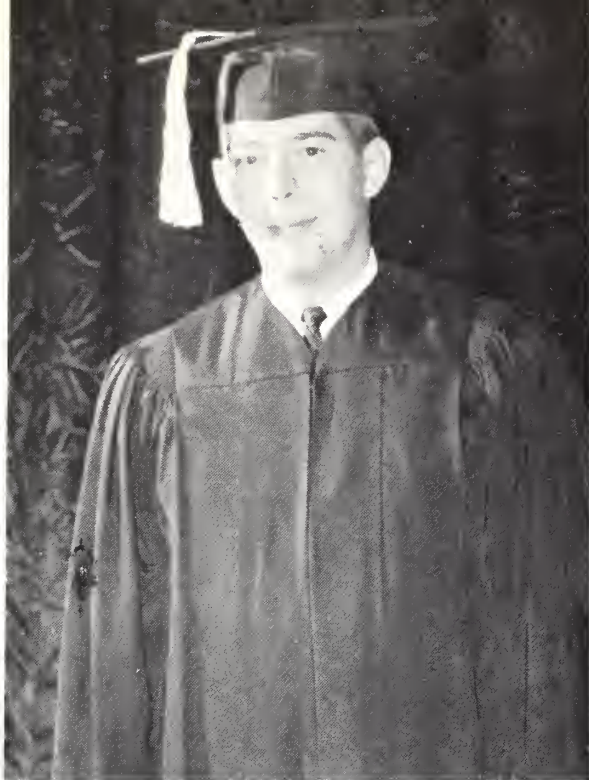

The 1962 Spring Honors Convocation convened at 10:30 A.M. on the morning of the Second of March in the Regis College Fieldhouse. The Reverend Harry E. Hoewischer, Dean of the College, presided over the traditional ceremonies which are held each year to honor outstanding academic achievements at Regis. The students deserving of the awards received them from Very Reverend Richard F. Ryan, President of the College.

Following the invocation by Reverend Harold L. Stansell, the opening address was delivered by Father Hoewischer. In his speech, Father Hoewischer stressed the need for an intelligent relationship between education and political responsibility. Following the opening address, Dr. Robert J. Glaser, M.D., Dean of the Colorado University School of Medicine, was introduced as the main speaker of the convocation. Dr. Glaser stressed the fellowship of educated men and the joys of scholarship. He said that even though temporary satisfaction can be found all around us, true joy of the mind can be found only in scholarship. It is in the fulfilling of the intellectual curiosity of man that he is able to overcome the materiality of our life and elevate himself in the fellowship with other educated men and to find true happiness in his endeavors.

Dr. Robert J. Glaser, the dean of the Colorado University Medical School and principal speaker of the Convocation, poses here before the ceremony between Rev. Harry E. Hoewischer, dean of Regis and the Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan President.

Ronald W. Moschel,
Senior

Ronald W. Moschel is graduating with an A.B. degree in History. Ron has been Vice-President of the St. John Berchmans Society; Prefect and Secretary of the Sodality; a student prefect; and has been active in many other organizations. Moschel is well deserving of the honor of President's Scholar.

George E. Reid,
Senior

George E. Reid is obtaining a B.S. in Mathematics. During his busy life at Regis, he has been President of the Aquinas Academy and Vice-President of the Denver Club as well as having been active in KREG Radio. To be named President's Scholar is indeed a fitting climax to George's Reid many accomplishments.

PRESIDENT'S SCHOLARS

George E. Leone, a junior from Trinidad, Colorado, is majoring in mathematics at Regis. George has consistently maintained a high scholastic average in courses of both natural science and mathematics. For the past year, he has been teaching physics at Marycrest High School. His endeavors to develop himself into an outstanding Catholic gentleman can certainly serve as an example to all students of Regis.

George E. Leone,
Junior

Ralph F. St. Louis, a history major, is a junior from Denver, Colorado. Ralph, besides maintaining a high scholastic average, has been an active participant in many campus organizations. Present editor-in-chief of the Brown and Gold Review, third-place winner in the national Jesuit essay contest, and a member of Who's Who are but a few of his recognitions.

Ralph F. St. Louis,
Junior

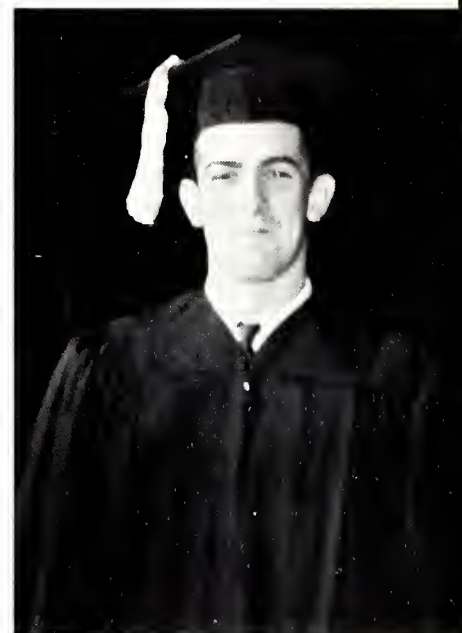

Edwin W. Atwater
Freshman Chemistry Award

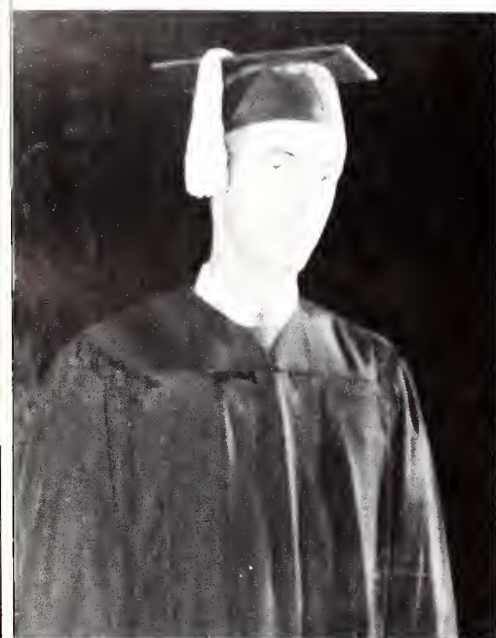

Edwin W. Atwater of Amarillo, Texas, received the Freshman Chemistry Award which is conferred each year upon the freshman who has attained the highest accumulated average in his chemistry efforts.

Recipient of the Rho Chi Sigma Award this year was Henry J. Gisler of Denver. This award is yearly bestowed by the Rho Chi Sigma Fraternity upon a senior chemistry major who has achieved a high degree of academic scholarship and who has been of outstanding service to the chemistry department.

Henry J. Gisler
Rho Chi Sigma Award

Each year, the faculty of the biology department seeks to recognize a senior biology major who has, through four years of concentrated study, demonstrated a willingness to devote the time and talent necessary to realize and achieve the objectives of the department. From among the numerous competitors, Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., summoned Hugo P. Weber to rostrum to receive the Class of 1929 Biology Award.

Jesuit Essay Awards

Annually a challenge is offered to students enrolled in all Jesuit Colleges around the country in the form of an essay contest. After a topic has been determined, students are allowed a diversified range of approaches. However their compositions upon submittance are strictly judged. Ralph St. Louis, Richard Gappa, and Hebert Liebmann were all recognized, and St. Louis placed third in the national Jesuit contest.

Daniel McNally, William Convery, Stephen Leonard, James Dowd, and Glenn Johnson won certificates in either forensics and/or debate at various colleges. Daniel McNally's was won at C.U., William Convery's at C.U., Stephen Leonard's at C.W.C. and C.U., James Dowd's at C.W.C., and Glen Johnson's at C.W.C.

Charles A. Ramunno
Alpha Kappa Psi Award

Alpha Kappa Psi each year presents its award to a student, enrolled in the field of commerce and finance, who has most realized the ideals of the division of scholarship. The award was this year presented to Charles A. Ramunno in recognition of successful attainment of these objectives.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN

Eleven seniors and three juniors received letters of recognition at the Spring Convocation from Who's Who. These fourteen students were selected for recognition in the 1961-1962 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, a national publication issued annually since 1934.

To be chosen for Who's Who, a student is first officially recommended by the College. He must then be accepted by the organization. Qualities considered in nominating students are scholarship, leadership, co-operation in educational and extracurricular activities, citizenship and promise of future achievements. Students from approximately 750 colleges and universities are cited.

Besides including the students in this volume, the Who's Who publishers provide a student placement service for all the nominees.

The recipients of this honor are all well known around Regis both in academic and extracurricular activities. Many have served in student government and each has held one or several offices in student organizations.

In the academic life of the student they are surpassed by few. The dean's list is a common designation for these students. They take studies seriously and strive for intellectual excellence.

In short, they are ideal college students. They have come to college to develop themselves, and are now being rewarded for their honest strivings in this direction.

We wish to take this opportunity to congratulate them in the name of the entire student body. This honor is only a small part of the recognition these students deserve.

Scene of the banquet—the Regis College Student Center

Mr. John H. Sullivan, guest speaker, poses the question in his address, "What would you do?"

David J. Cullan, past president of the executive board presides as master of ceremonies.

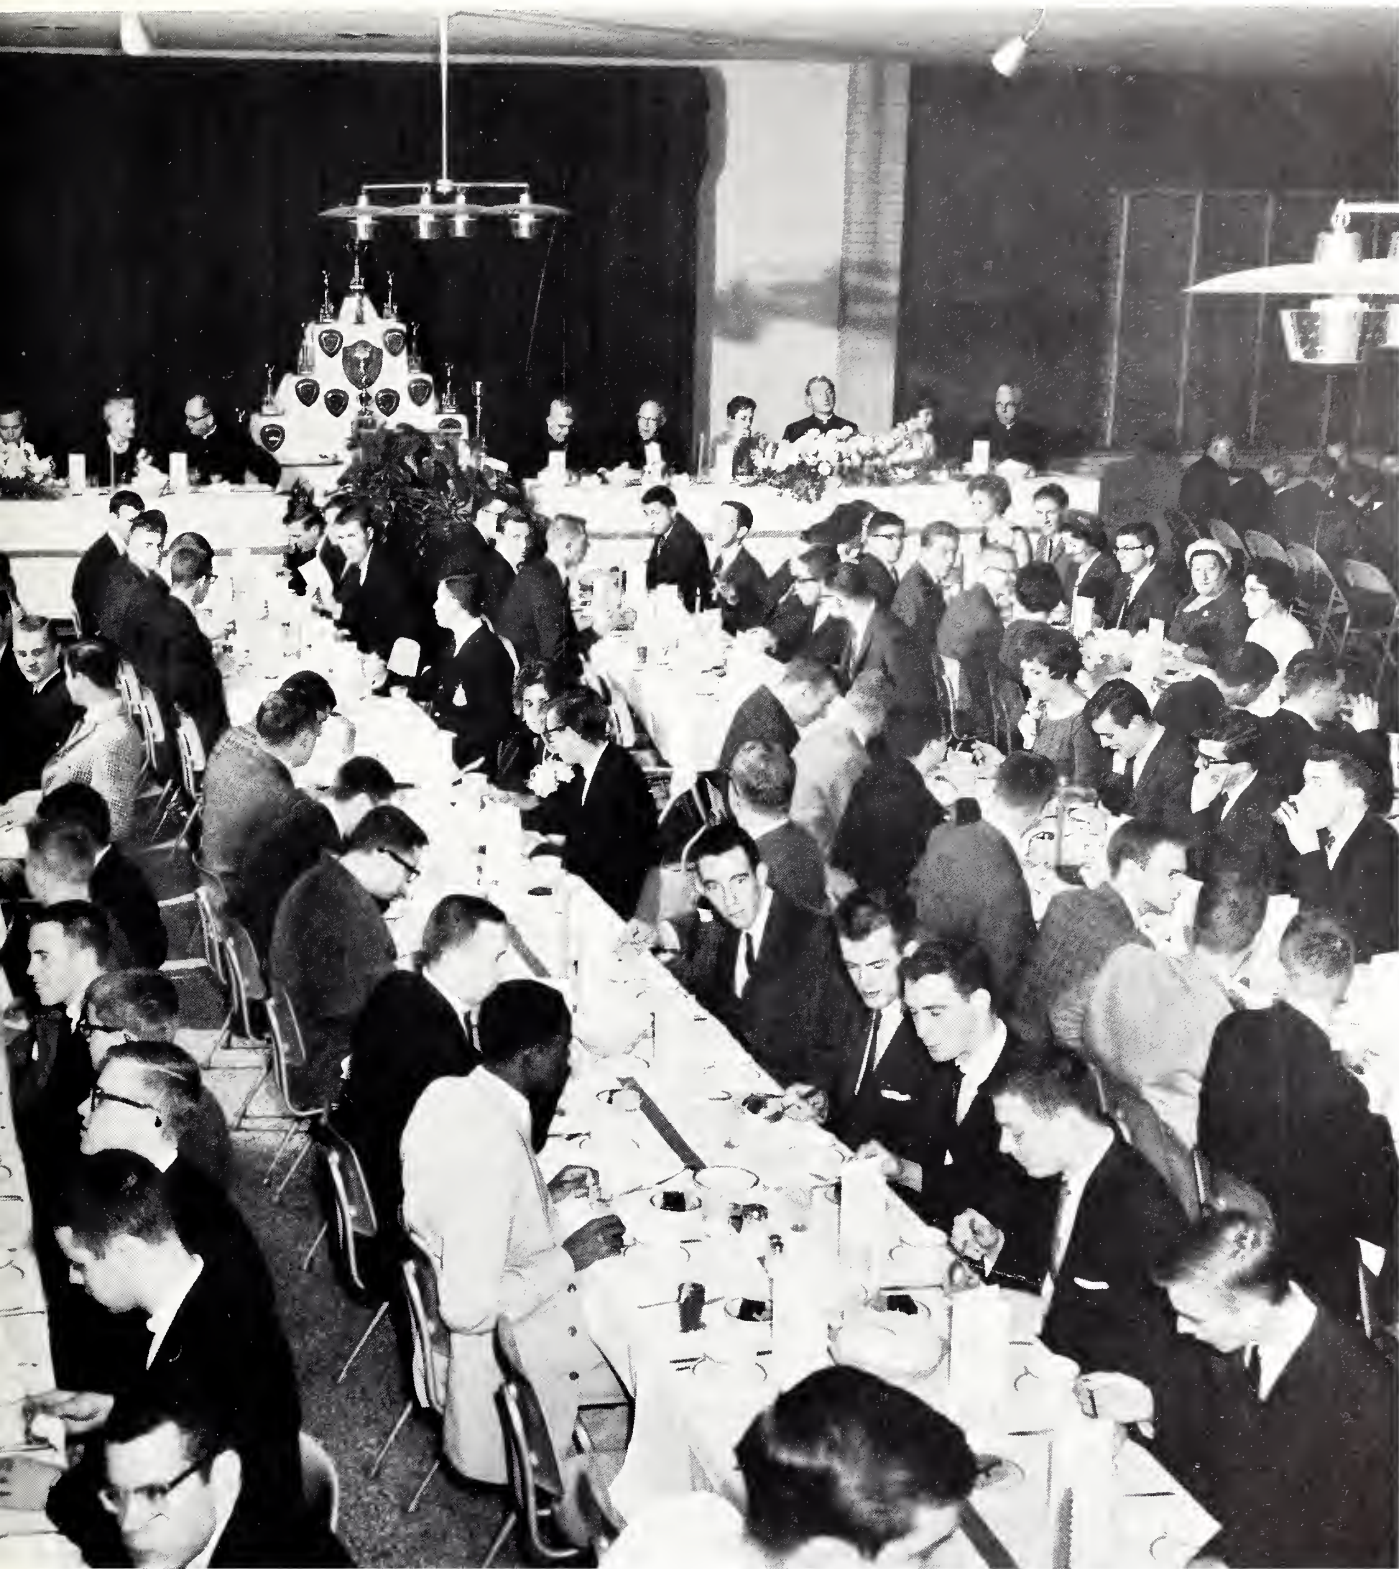

Recognition of the 1961-1962 Executive Board is extended by Rev. Richard F. Ryan, president of the college, to Dave Cullen who accepted it on behalf of the entire board.

1962 REGIS COLLEGE

H O N O R S B A N Q U E T

The 1962 Honors Banquet finds the guests flanking the trophies which were presented by Father Ryan.

March fourth, nineteen hundred and sixty-two: guests, faculty, and students assembled at the Regis College Student Center. They had come there for one purpose: to recognize publicly those members of the student body who had through the past year willingly sacrificed their time and contributed their talents to the betterment of their classmates and the college itself.

Following the invocation by Rev. Bernard S. Karst, S.J., Dave Cullan, past Executive Board President, ascended the rostrum and welcomed the assembly after which he introduced the guests seated at the speakers table. As Master of Ceremonies, Dave began by indicating the principle ideals of the college stating that each of the award winners had been selected with these constantly in mind. Fr. Ryan then presented the awards to the deserving recipients.

Highlight of the evening was the address of the principal speaker, Mr. John J. Sullivan, internationally known Catholic lay leader. Beginning his presentation with a historical sketch, Mr. Sullivan quickly updated it to the present day and related it to the role played by the Catholic in society. "A Man For All Time" was initiated with an account of the life of Saint Thomas More and ended with a promulgation of the ideals of Catholic scholarship and social participation.

Tim Champion presents Paul Frey with the John J. Gleason Memorial Athletic Award

The Ranger's liaison man, Paul Frey, was honored for his basketball prowess by the brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma, who sponsored Gleason Memorial Award. Respected for his rallying spirit, recognized for his collected manner under pressure, and characterized by his turbulence on the hardwood, Frey is indeed the deserving aspirant for this award. Alpha Delta Gamma presents this award yearly in memory of the late John J. Gleason, Regis basketball player killed in an automobile accident.

Robert Sims was this years recipient of the annually presented Regis Playhouse Service Award.

Recipient of the Regis Playhouse Service Award was Bob Sims. Holding the office of secretary, Sims has sparked the organization during its most successful year in campus history. The Service Award is presented annually to the senior who has best served the interests of the Playhouse.

The Outstanding Organization of 1962 Award was given to Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity. Shown receiving the award from Father Ryan are Fred Albi, 1961-1962 President of ADG, and Tim Campion, 1962-1963 President of ADG. This award is given yearly to the organization on campus which most clearly fulfills its aims as stated in its constitution.

Fr. Ryan bestows the organization of the year award on the Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity, represented by Fred Albi and Tim Campion.

Fr. Ryan presents Chuck Torinus with the Siger Ski Club Award.

The Siger Ski Club recognized one of its most enthusiastic and one of its most talented members, Chuck Torinus, with its annual award. Chuck organized the ski team, served as its captain, and became the group's S.R.M.S.A. high point man. The first Siger Ski Club award was given last year to Ben Bare.

Dennis Driscoll accepts the Benchwarmer Spirit Award.

Rabble rouser Dennis Driscoll received the Benchwarmers Spirit Award for his support and promotion of varsity athletics. This award extends further to honor Dennis as the most enthusiastic organizer of the student body in all areas of participation.

Fred Albi,
Senior

Fred Albi, a sociology major from Denver, Colorado, has been a member of the Student Senate General Assembly throughout his four years at Regis. He is a member and past president of both Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity and the Denver Club, and is active in several other organizations. Fred was a recipient of the Who's Who Award and has often been named to the Dean's List.

George Reid, a philosophy major, has served as president of the Aquinas Academy and vice-president of the Denver Club. George, a Denver student, President's Scholar, is an active participant in many campus affairs, and has never seen his name off the Dean's List.

George Reid,
Senior

Robert Eaton,
Senior

Robert Eaton is a biology major from New Orleans, Louisiana. Active in student affairs, he has held offices in Rho Chi Sigma, the Benchwarmers, the General Assembly, and the Student Senate Executive Board. Bob has supplemented his Dean's List membership with a Who's Who award.

Ralph Spinuzzi is a junior biology major from Pueblo, Colorado. Besides compiling a Dean's List average, Ralph, a dormitory prefect, is active in several campus organizations. Prominent among them is Rho Chi Sigma, in which he has served as treasurer.

Ralph Spinuzzi,
Junior

The Man of the Year Awards are presented annually to those Regis College Students who most perfectly personify the College's purpose of educating the whole man. While scholastic excellence is not the only criteria for the choice of a Man of the Year, he will be above average in this area for he will appreciate the educational opportunities offered to him. He will also be active in extracurricular activities and have used his leadership abilities to the betterment of himself, his organizations, and the College. He will be an exemplary Catholic and American.

Regis College honors these men for being what we proudly refer to as a "Regis Man."

REGIS MEN OF

Donald Ricken,
Senior

Donald J. Ricken is an accounting major from Dyersville, Iowa. Ricken is also a recipient of the Who's Who Award and has been on the Dean's List. He is a basketball letterman and is currently serving as treasurer of his senior class.

Joe Burke,
Senior

Joe K. Burke, a resident of Albuquerque, New Mexico, served as Secretary of the 1961-1962 Student Senate Executive Board. Joe is a Business Administration major and has received the Benchwarmer School Spirit Award. He has also been a recipient of the Who's Who Award.

Edwin Feulner,
Junior

Edwin J. Feulner, Jr., "Hoot" to his friends, is the current President of the Student Body. Ed, a native of Elmhurst, Illinois, has held several class offices and has been a leading member in several organizations on campus, including Alpha Kappa Psi, the Ranger, and the Brown and Gold Review. He has appeared on the Dean's List and has received the Who's Who Award.

STUDENT ADMINISTRATION

The Populous Party, through its well-planned, superbly executed campaign, accomplished a stunning victory over their opposition in having elected six of the seven members of the party to the Executive Board of the Regis College Student Senate.

Ranger Day last year, although marred by rain, exemplified once again the effective organizational ability of this year's board. Extending the length of the day, and adding a variety of new events—among them an intra-organization track and field meet, night-club entertainment, and an intercollegiate tricycle race for women entrants only—the board again made the recently established tradition of Ranger Day one of the highlights of the year.

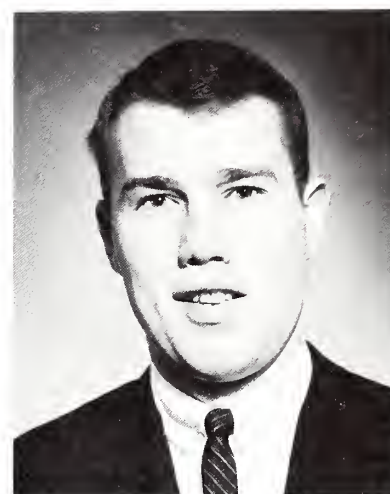

Freshman initiation, a major task for any board, was handled smoothly and effectively through the untiring, diligent efforts of the Freshman Initiation Committee of the board.

One of the principal undertakings of the board this year was a thoughtful and carefully worked out constitutional revision. After many hours of hard work and discussion the General Assembly later accepted and approved several of the salient features of the revision.

Every student and every student group looked to the board for approval and assistance in carrying out ideas and plans. Those groups in particular who received money from the General Assembly with the aid of the Executive Board will attest to the overall guidance of the board. Its decisions were definitive and accepted as such.

ST. JOHN BERCHMANS SOCIETY

FIRST ROW: R. Thill, R. Forest, R. Spinuzzi, M. Adamson, B. MacDonald, D. Stone, J. Wallner, R. Binzel, R. McErlean, W. Carmody, J. Lane, R. Jeffries, R. Eaton, Denis Dalpes, Fr. Casey. SECOND ROW: Dan Dalpes, R. Mullaney, J.

Fanganello, W. Souba, S. Bartosch, D. Kiefer, M. Downing, R. Sardello, T. Kojis, F. Donovan, M. Dixon, C. Budinger, D. Mildenerger.

OFFICERS: R. Forest, Secretary; J. Fanganello, Vice-President; Fr. Casey, Director; C. Budinger, President; Dan Dalpes, Student Senate Alternate.

The purpose of St. John Berchmans Society is to promote and foster intelligent participation in liturgy of the Catholic Church. By assisting as servers at some of the fifty daily masses offered on campus, by instructing others in the manner of serving the Mass, and by supplying the students with Dialogue Mass leaders, members of the Society acquire a deeper appreciation of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and its place in daily life. The Society's example of unselfish perseverance and determination directly influences the spiritual development of the Student Body.

The Society holds its meetings every other week, and at these meetings various guest speakers discuss aspects of Church liturgy. By its dedication to Christ, its service at His altar, and by the study of the liturgy of His Church, the St. John Berchmans Society has become one of the largest and most respected organizations on campus.

SODALITY OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

The Regis College Sodality, the oldest organization on campus, is devoted to inspiring young Catholic men to a Christian way of life above that required of every individual Catholic. In striving to achieve this end, the Sodality stresses daily Mass and Holy Communion, the rosary, meditation, and mental prayer. Regis Sodalists are required to make a closed retreat sometime during the course of the school year. Thus the Sodality prepares its members for positions in the world which requires solid Catholic leadership.

Admission to the Sodality is determined by a prospective Sodalists performance during his probationary period. During this period, about a semester in length, the probationer learns the Sodality's way of life and then decides whether he thinks he can fit it into his personal life; the Sodality judges whether the probationer will be beneficial to the organization and whether he can be expected to fulfill the commitments placed upon him as a member of the Sodality.

The most important apostolic work of the Regis Sodality is the teaching of catechism at the Golden Industrial School for Boys. Each Sunday morning the Sodalists journey to the school and spend two hours instructing these boys in the basic truths of their faith.

ST. THOMAS MORE SOCIETY

SITTING: OFFICERS: L. Quinn, Treasurer; L. Haack, Secretary; R. Murphy, President; F. Donovan, Sgt.-at-Arms; W. Souba, Vice-President. STANDING: J. Wanebo, C. Swanson, R. Frischkorn, W. Rochelle, M. Barbick.

The St. Thomas More Pre-Legal Society is composed of a small group of Regis students joined together in a common interest the study of Law. The Society is an academic organization pledged to inform its members of the varied facets of the law as it exists today and of the widespread opportunities available in the legal profession.

The Society began its 1961-1962 academic year with a discussion led by Mr. Klene of the night school faculty, on the legal career and on preparation for law school. At another session, Michael Eigeman, one of the members of the Society reported on the Law School Admissions test.

The second semester activities of the St. Thomas More Society began with an address by Professor North of the Creighton School of Law. Professor North spoke concerning the opportunities and requirements of a student entering law school, with particular emphasis on choosing the correct law school. Later in the year, the organization staged a mock trial in conjunction with the University of Denver Law School. Other discussions during the Spring Semester included such topical subjects as "Law vs. Justice in the American System" and "The Moral Obligations of a Catholic Lawyer."

With this full schedule, the St. Thomas More Society has had an eventful year.

SEATED LEFT TO RIGHT: M. Jennings, M. O'Leary, R. Pipkin, Rev. H. Klocker, L. Patterson, F. Perry, J. Mura, P. Hickey, G. Reid, H. Stamper. STANDING: T. Campion, R. Feely, J. Avila, J. Tarabino, R. Moschel, T. Wachter, B. Sardello.

AQUINAS ACADEMY

OFFICERS: J. Tarabino, Secretary; G. Reid, President, Rev. H. Klocker, Moderator.

The Aquinas Academy provides for the inquiring student the equivalent of the now popular "honors course" commonly found on the large university campus. In this, it fulfills the aim of fostering a spirit of independent investigation and genuine intellectual curiosity in its members.

Although the Aquinas Academy is primarily a philosophical organization, its membership is by no means limited to philosophy majors. In fact the actual diversity of departments represented in its membership emphasizes the true spirit of a liberal arts college found in the Academy's members.

Under the direction of their moderator, Fr. Harry Klocker S.J., the members of the Academy have undertaken a sweeping study of the philosophy of Gabriel Marcel, a contemporary Christian existentialist. Led by its president, George Reid, and secretary, Joseph Tarabino, the guest speakers have included outstanding members of the faculty, prominent Denverites, and the students themselves.

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

OFFICERS: T. Metz, Historian; R. Christiansen, Vice-President; R. Davlin, President; D. Bruno, Secretary; C. Swanson, Treasurer.

To organize all education students on the Regis Campus into a functioning group; to make Teaching recognized by all as the great profession it is; these are the goals toward which the Student National Education strives.

Activities of the S.N.E.A. for the past year have included assisting the Education Department in sponsoring the state-wide A.C.T. Test Conference; co-sponsoring with the Denver Club and the Administration the annual Senior Day on Campus; and organizing and hosting a Christmas Party for the orphans at the Saint Vincent Home. The organization also lent their help to the College in setting up the Christmas festival held in mid December.

The S.N.E.A. meets twice each month to discuss the activities and problems of the students whose interests lie in the field of Education. Guest speakers are often invited to attend these meetings. Earlier this year the guest speaker was Father Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J., Dean of Regis College, who delivered an address on the Problems of Administration. Although it is a young organization, the S.N.E.A. is already beginning to assume an equal position along with the established organizations on campus.

FRONT ROW: D. Bruno, R. Christiansen, M. Barbick, J. Doyle. MIDDLE ROW: L. McGee, T. Metz, T. Scaglia, R. Frischkorn, C. Swanson. BACK ROW: D. Kiefer, P. Farley, D. Archer.

STANDING: OFFICERS: R. St. Louis, Vice-President; Fr. Boyle Moderator; G. Johnson; President; E. Feulner, Secretary. SEATED:

R. Holland, D. Hirsch, J. Tarabino, N. Zarlengo, D. Kmitch, G. Williams, R. Gappa, J. Curtan, H. Liebmann, D. Kiefer.

Under the supervision of their moderator Fr. Boyle, various members of the Literary club are found considering a drama selected by them for discussion.

LITERARY CLUB

A club for the reading and discussion of good literature, the Literary Club last year considered Thomas Wolfe's Look Homeward, Angel, Ernest Hemingway's The Sun Also Rises, and the recent play of Tennessee Williams, Period of Adjustment. This year, however, the club decided that, rather than select random works for discussion, it would choose a particular aspect of literature for the year's discussions. From the several suggestions—esthetic theories, Finnegan's Wake, novels in relation to their film dramatizations, modern poetry and/or drama—the club decided on a study of drama in general, taking dramatic works representative of the various periods of their production, comparing and contrasting them as drama and as literature.

Such discussions often lead to philosophical considerations on the nature of art. In this context Maritain's The Responsibility of the Artist was given a more thorough consideration last year.

The Literary Club also encourages students in their creative efforts, particularly in writing. In this connection it edited and published two issues of a literary journal which included critical essays, short stories, poetry, and drawings submitted by students of diverse academic interests.

FIRST ROW: J. Dowd, H. Liebmann, Mr. R. Bain, G. Williams, R. Simsick. SECOND ROW: J. Cunningham, S. Leonard, G. Johnson, W. Convery, T. O'Neil.

DEBATE SOCIETY

The Regis Debate and Oratorical Society attended forensic tournaments at many of the fine colleges and universities around the country including: Colorado Women's College, Colorado University, Loyola University of Chicago, Colorado State College, University of Denver, University of Wyoming, Adams State College, and Colorado College. In addition to standard inter-collegiate debate, members took part in extemporaneous speaking, discussion, oral interpretation, cross-examination debate, and oratory at these various tournaments.

Awards for outstanding performance were received by Stephen Leonard, James Dowd, William Convery, and Glenn Johnson. Gerald Williams was judged the outstanding campus orator in the First Annual Oratorical Contest sponsored by the Speech Department and the club. He represented Regis at the Colorado State Oratorical Contest held at Pueblo College in February.

OFFICERS: Mr. R. Bain, Moderator; H. Liebmann, Secretary; W. Convery, Treasurer; S. Leonard, President.

ALPHA DELTA GAMMA

The Brothers on retreat at Sacred Heart Retreat House.

Alpha Delta Gamma, a National, Catholic, Social fraternity, has for its purpose the uniting of congenial minded men in a brotherhood of love and high respect in order to foster the achievements of high Christian ideals, sound learning, and social development among its members and their fellow students.

A.D.G. is well known on the campus for such outstanding functions as the annual Halloween Dance and the social event of the year—the Coronation Ball. Being the first group at Regis College to successfully present big-name entertainment, the organization added another great service to the students, school, and community. In addition to the above mentioned activities the frat sponsors numerous parties, banquets, and smokers for its members and their guests.

In order to fulfill its service aim, the brothers undertake a number of projects for the school and other organizations. In its spiritual development A.D.G. holds a monthly communion Mass, a weekly rosary, a daily Mass program, and an annual closed retreat for its members.

Alpha Kappa Psi, the national business fraternity on campus, aims to be a brotherhood, united in leadership, service, and social activities, as a preparation for success in business after graduation. It works to further the individual welfare of its members through the aspect of brotherhood, to foster scientific research in the fields of commerce and finance, and to promote and advance courses leading to degrees in business administration.

The Gamma Sigma chapter of Regis participates actively in campus-wide activities. The fraternity undertook the sale of all ads for the 1962 Regis Ranger and, in conjunction with the school, co-sponsored the 1961-62 Regis College Lecture Series. In addition to its membership-limited banquets, smokers, and gatherings, the fraternity promotes social functions open to general school attendance, the most important of which is the annual Presentation Ball held this year at the Brown Palace Hotel in November. For the second year in a row, Gamma Sigma chapter was awarded the gold plaque from national headquarters in recognition of its achievements in efficient operation. The Regis chapter placed first in this nationwide evaluation.

The brothers of Alpha Kappa Psi are seen enjoying one of their monthly Communion breakfasts at which many dignitaries are invited to speak.

Rho Chi Sigma, founded in 1929, is one of the oldest organizations on the Regis campus. This science fraternity is primarily devoted to a scientific education and a Christian intellectual development of its members.

The purpose of the fraternity is fourfold. Rho Chi Sigma strives first to instill in its members a desire for scientific knowledge, especially in the field of chemistry; secondly, to further the tradition of sound intellectual achievement on the Regis campus; thirdly, to foster a strong feeling of brotherhood and union among its members; and finally, to develop the social and moral character of its members.

To accomplish the first aspect of its purpose, the fraternity sponsors, at its bi-weekly meetings, lectures by faculty members, students, and guest lecturers in the field of science. These lectures are supplemented by several field trips throughout the year. The fraternity achieves the second aspect of its purpose by inviting interested students and groups to attend those of its lectures it considers to be of greatest interest and value to the non-science student.

The members fulfill the third part of the fraternity's purpose primarily through a common intellectual interest in science and further through its spiritual and social activities. The attempt to achieve the fourth part of its purpose permeates and directs Rho Chi Sigma in all its undertakings.

The purpose of the Irish Regis Association is to provide its members with social, cultural and spiritual activity and to imbue the campus with an appreciation of the Gaelic culture. Since its birth only two years ago, the I.R.A. has achieved notable success in fulfilling its aims. Along social lines, the I.R.A. co-sponsors, with Denver Catholic Charities, the annual city-wide St. Patrick's Day Ball. In fulfilling its cultural aims the Association has inaugurated the I.R.A. Choir, the I.R.A. dancers and singers, and last year presented the Empire Lyric Players in "An Evening With Gilbert and Sullivan." The spiritual aim is accomplished through joint Communion Masses and Breakfasts, the St. Patrick's Day High Mass, and by supporting the Jesuit Seminary Aid Association. The Irish Regis Association also sponsors a soccer team which was the Colorado "B" Division Champion last year.

THE IRISH REGIS ASSOCIATION

Among the notable achievements of the I.R.A. was the inauguration of the Irish Regis Association Choir.

The Regis College Benchwarmers is an organization whose primary concern is to stimulate an active student interest in all student activities, particularly athletics. At every basketball game you will see a solid core of Benchwarmers vigorously indicating pleasure or displeasure at some turn in the game. After the games (and at various other times) they sponsor dances in the Student Center at which excited Regians can celebrate a victory or forget the frustration of defeat. These Benchwarmer dances have proved highly successful, with an average attendance of approximately 350 students. Before important games the Benchwarmers have organized pep rallies and caravans, and have charge of the migration to the Air Force Academy, a high point in the club's activities.

In order to insure effective backing for the team, the Benchwarmers select the men and women from Regis and Loretto who act as cheerleaders. At the awards Banquet in May, the group gives two awards: one for The Most Spirited Student, the other for the Outstanding Regis Basketball Player In The Regis vs. Air Force Academy game.

This year the Benchwarmers were given charge of the student activities for Regis' first annual homecoming.

DENVER CLUB

OFFICERS: M. Barbick, President; Mr. Pichette, Moderator; R. Salem, Secretary-Treasurer; Missing from picture, J. Curtan and G. Reid, Vice-Presidents.

Among campus organizations, the Denver Club has earned an outstanding reputation for service to the student body and to Regis as an institution. The club, consisting of seventy members, is intended primarily for the benefit of the Denver students; it was organized for the purpose of giving this group of Regis men, constituting over one-half of the student body, a more active participation in campus life. The Denver Club seeks to produce a spirit of mutual co-operation among all students for the attainment of common goals.

Throughout the year, the club assists at or sponsors a wide variety of service, academic and social functions. The club's year begins in September when it hosts incoming freshmen and their parents, and ends in May when its members assist at Commencement. Club members take charge of Regis' annual High School Senior Day. The club supports such charitable functions as the S.N.E.A.'s Orphan Christmas Party.

Working in conjunction with the Playhouse, the organization sponsors the Denver Club Revue, one of the year's outstanding entertainment events. The Harvest Festival hayrack ride and dance is also sponsored by the club. The officers work jointly with the Loretto Heights Denver Club in promoting a number of social events each year. The organization this year also sponsored attractive Miss Susan Petri, of Colorado Woman's College, for Queen of Regis.

Denver Club members help in the orientations of freshmen.

The Italian Club of Regis endeavors to further an understanding and appreciation of Italian culture and to promote amicable relationships among the various student organizations for the betterment of Regis.

To its credit, the Italian Club, through a vigorous and effective campaign, elected its very attractive candidate, Miss Andrea Ruscio, Queen of Regis. Demonstrating further their characteristic vim, Italian Club members took second place in the "College Brand Roundup" contest, accumulating the second largest assortment of cigarette packages. During the past year, the Italian Club has undergone a substantial reorganization. To its credit, the membership was greatly increased and the use of club blazers instituted. The club also sponsored an Italian Culture Week in February which included a lecture series and a fine book display.

PLAYHOUSE

The purpose of the Regis College Playhouse is to instill in its members a deeper appreciation of the drama and a greater knowledge of the theatre, and to present for the students quality dramatic productions. Since its institution on campus eight years ago, the Playhouse has succeeded in accomplishing its purpose by offering a wide variety of fine plays ranging from the farcial "You Can't Take It With You" to the highly dramatic "Look Homeward, Angel." This years major production, presented at Bonfils Memorial Theatre, was the celebrated comedy-drama "Bus Stop" by William Inge.

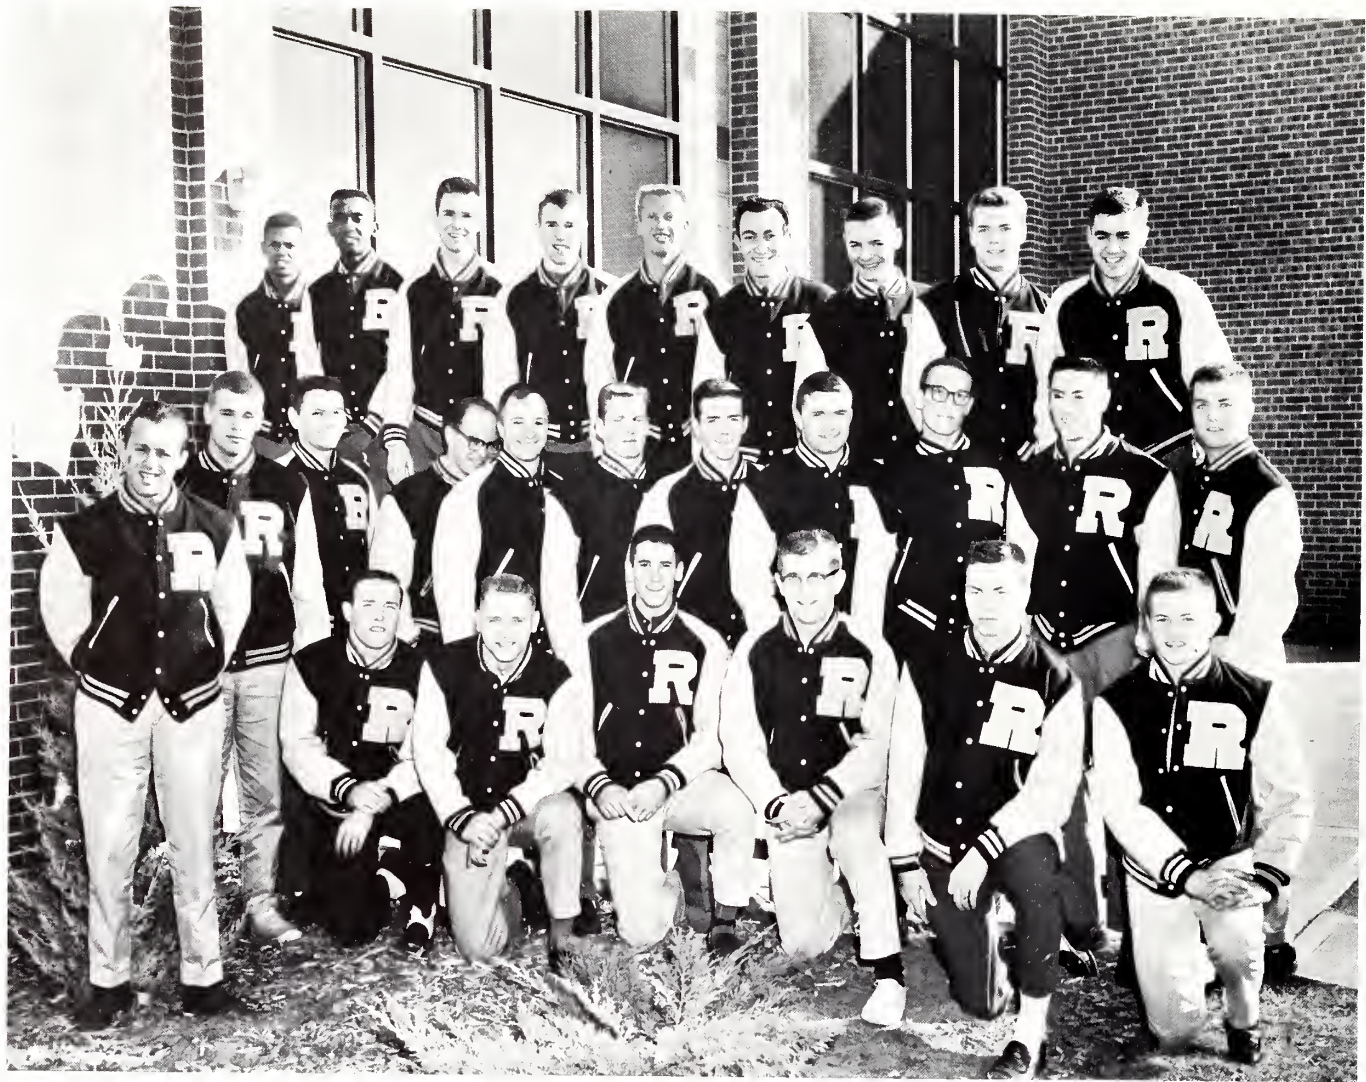

At its bi-weekly meetings, under the supervision of their moderator, Fr. Deeman S.J., the members of the Playhouse discuss plays and the various problems of play production. From time to time the Playhouse invites guest lecturers to its meetings to discuss different aspects of the theatre.

In addition to presenting a major production each fall, the Playhouse co-sponsors, along with Rho Chi Sigma, the "Sunday Night Movies" which are presented in the fieldhouse every other week for the entertainment and edification of the students.

"R" CLUB

OFFICERS: T. Dieveney, Treasurer; D. Driscoll, Secretary; P. Frey, President; D. Sullivan, Vice-President; Coach H. Marshall, Moderator.

The membership of the R Club is comprised of those men who have distinguished themselves in inter-collegiate athletics. These men have brought to Regis the acclaim she deserves in competitive sports. Clean sportsmanship in all phases of athletic life is the pledge of the members participating in this organization.

In addition to their primary function of stimulating student, faculty, and alumni interest in athletics at Regis, the R Club, this year, has undertaken a number of new projects. Under the supervision of its members, the College intramural program has undergone numerous significant changes which have renewed and enlivened student interest in athletic events of this nature. The R Club was also selected to sponsor the student migration to the Regis-Air Force Academy basketball game held on the Academy grounds located near Colorado Springs. In addition members of the club managed the concession stand which was arranged for at each home game.

The purpose of these activities is to further a greater interest in sports whether students wish to actively participate in or merely observe them.

The New Sport of Kings, since horseracing went on the skids, is skiing, where everyone goes on the skids. But royal sports sometimes require a king's ransom or deficit spending in the exchequer. Hence, the main purpose for the ski club: It sponsored week-end trips to nearby winter sports areas as often as possible "at popular prices." The club also obtained purchase and rental discounts for its members at some downtown ski shops.

This year it sponsored several "mixer" trips with the Heights, an intramural race day, and a race for the coveted Regis traveling trophy. And the more experienced members devoted some of their time to the instruction of the newcomers to the sport.

Requirement for membership is some amount of courage and ambition. How much? Enough zeal to rise with the sun for the frequent excursions into Colorado's Winter Wonderland and enough courage to face the thousands of pairs of form-fitted stretch pants found at every ski area. Ninety-six men of Regis thought themselves qualified in these two fields this year, making the Ski Club one of the largest organizations on campus.

Although somewhat pinched for funds this year, the club also fielded an intercollegiate ski team which, in its first year, creditably represented the student body.

The award for Best Skier at Regis was a traveling trophy given at the Honors Banquet to the Intramural Race Winner, Chuck Torinus. He was congratulated by last year's Best Skier, Ben Bare.

BROWN AND GOLD REVIEW

The editorial staff are shown analyzing the first issue of the REVIEW shortly after its publication.

The most significant element in regard to the Brown and Gold has been the initiation of a new format, namely that of a magazine. Its content has been editorial, reportorial, and creative. The Brown and Gold Review, its extended title, has striven to keep the students of Regis College fully informed of the projects and accomplishments of the various student organizations, of events on campus sponsored by the student body, of trends and opinions among the students, and of anything that might interest or benefit the college as a communal group.

The Editor-in-chief for the past year was John Thomas Metz, aided by the Assistant Editor, Ron Moschel. Mike McCarthy fulfilled the functions of Feature Editor. Ed Feulmer and Joe McNamara kept in close contact with the various clubs and campus organizations, gathered pertinent news in relation to their activities. The task of filtering through national news which came to our attention during the year fell to Glenn Johnson. The section devoted to Reviews and Entertainment was constructed under the careful guidance of Ralph St. Louis. Literary endeavors of the student body were submitted to Don Hirsch who functioned as the Literary Editor. Managing Editor for the magazine was Roy A. Daugherty and money matters fell to George Faffney. Photographers were Bob Jennings and Ray Schramm. The Moderator for this initial undertaking was Mr. John L. Gribben, instructor in English, whose determination and encouragement acted as a constant spur to the editors and their staff.

Confusion, consternation, and complication accompany the conflict of pictures, people, and personalities, before the Ranger goes to press.

Pre-press activities in the Ranger Office encompassed anything from pirating pictures to concealing copy. Under the able guidance of James Hartmann, a nearly all-Junior staff underwent a series of instruction sessions aimed at the production of a more presentable yearbook for the Regis student.

Weekly meetings were inaugurated to familiarize the members with the needs of the other section heads. As the year ground on, operational procedures were smoothed out and staff members found that their fellow workers could utter a civil phrase or two, when the occasion called for it. Copy writers found that they were most capable photographers, photographers were pleasantly surprised to see that they excelled in page layouts, and section heads discovered that copy writing was their strong point. This will be one of the few yearbooks produced in the United States to owe its existence to the "buddy" system.

OUTSTANDING ORGANIZATION

Proudly the Brothers display the coveted award.

ALPHA DELTA GAMMA

Pres. Albi looks on as Andrea Ruscio is crowned "Queen of Regis" by Carol Scuderi at the annual ADG Coronation Ball.

Brother Mike Clark escorts ADG candidate, Miss Jeanette Ward.

Newly elected President, Tim Campion, conducts his first meeting.

On March 4, 1962 at the annual Honors Banquet, Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity was awarded the Outstanding Organization of 1962 trophy. This highly sought after prize is given each year to the organization on campus that does most to fulfill the aims and ideals of that organization.

A resume of the past year's efforts of Alpha Delta Gamma is clearly indicative of a deserving recipient. The Brothers distinguished themselves in the areas of social, intellectual, and spiritual development. They further assisted the school through various service projects in order to implement the ideals of the College.

Fostering the highest Christian ideals of manhood among its members, the Alpha Deltas attended a regular monthly Mass in a body, as well as allocating specific Mass days to the individual Brothers on a rotating basis each day. As an additional collective effort, they attended a closed retreat at the Sacred Heart retreat house in Sadalia. The Brothers also held a weekly rosary.

In the realm of service to the school, the brothers handled the physical arrangements for the Convocations and served as ushers. In the interests of its members and their fellow students, the fraternity sponsored a series of Opportunity Talks for the liberal arts student.

In addition to the Halloween Dance, Coronation Ball, and Big Name entertainment, the Brothers raffled off a "Night on the Town" which included dinner for four and tickets to see "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." Thus, ADG continued its long tradition of interest and help to its members and Regis College.

F.B.I. agent, Mr. Gene Cobal, was the first speaker in a series of opportunity talks presented by the Brothers.

Secretary, Dave Yezzi, calls roll at a regular meeting.

ATHLETICS

Pre-season sessions with Coach Presley Askeew produced a variety of changes in the intramural program. Most obvious among these was the rule requiring any other intramural team entered in any other intramural competition to be composed of the same personnel. Points counting for an all-intramural championship were to be given for victories in sports such as football, basketball, softball, volleyball, and swimming.

Vying for top place in the intramural football division were Alpha Kappa Psi, Alpha Delta Gamma, and The Seven Mules. It is worthy of note that the "Mules" have lost but one intramural football game since their formation three years ago. Following a series of snowy interruptions, the intrepid Seven Mules closed fast and managed a tie with ADG as the fraternity team, needing only one victory in two games, could salvage only two ties.

As was expected, Welsh dropped the ball.

Bob Anderson and Gary Marsack head for safety after seeing a hard-charging Bob O'Donnell of the Cool Guys close in from the side.

Gary Potter, of the 7 Mules, attempts to turn the corner as Dennis the Menace leads the way.

REGIS

GOLF

Directed by Father Bocklage and amply staffed by returning veterans, the Regis golf team is anticipating a rewarding season next spring.

Intrasquad matches have proven the ability of returning linksters and have also shed some light on an improving and promising group of freshman golfers.

This heretofore unheard of series of "pre-snow" matches has produced a kindling of interest which was formerly left to a hurried practice session preceding the spring season.

Those expected to bolster the Regis effort are Lou Galipeau, Dennis Driscoll, Jack Wallner, Gary Potter, Bob Wheeler, Garry Dooher, Chuck Torinus, and Phil Boberschmidt.

Goalie Rich Block thwarts a scoring attempt as George Wilson puts on the brakes.

Dimberger aims for a fleeing referee.

Though a relatively new sport at Regis, soccer is one that is here to stay. While it was through the efforts of the I.R.A. that the team was formed, the members themselves often furnished their own equipment with the singular exception being the soccer balls themselves.

The team may be found at either Curtis or City Park each Sunday and have proven themselves capable of meeting many of the local college teams on their own terms and emerging the victor.

The encounters on Sunday are part of the schedule to be met by any member of the soccer league sponsored by the City of Denver. In the rigorous league play, often against teams with much more experienced personnel, the Regians scrapped their way to a second-place finish.

In the ensuing tournament, the makeshift group of hustlers proved that a beautiful uniform was no match for an overabundance of desire as they ran every opponent methodically into the ground until there were none left. They then stepped into the enviable position of City Champion for the 1961 season.

The coach will always reflect the rigors of a close game.

The 1961-62 Rangers presented to the fans a different brand of basketball than they had in the past. Problems were experienced at first, but personnel changes later in the season remedied these.

It must be noted that the calibre of opposition faced by the Rangers was noticeably better. Teams such as Dayton and Detroit furnished more than adequate tests for the ability of the Rangers.

If the pace set by the team later in the season can be carried over into next year, the charges of Joe Hall should be even better than ever and definite N.C.A.A. tournament contenders.

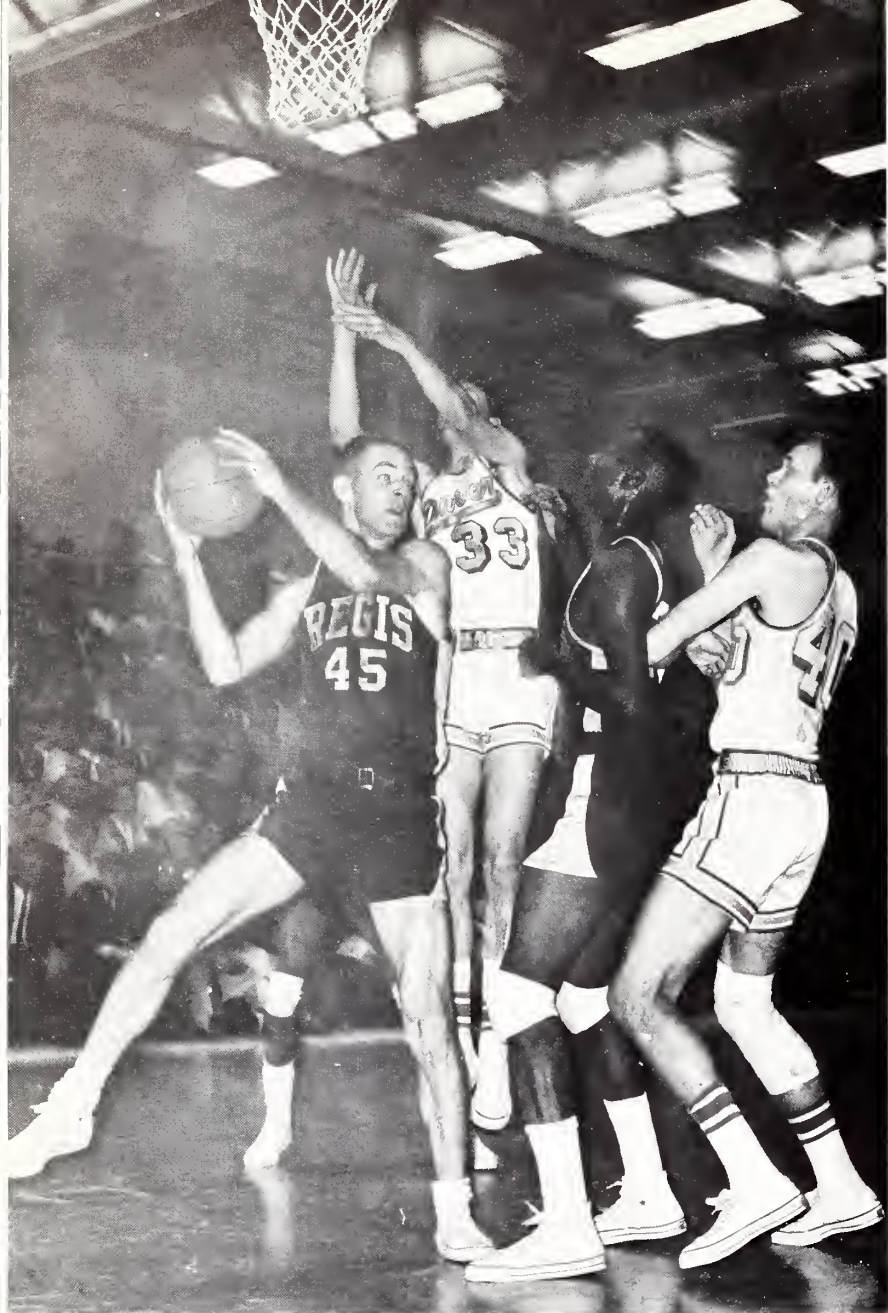

Captain Jerry Sherman's deadly hook shot and rugged rebounding made him invaluable during his collegiate career at Regis.

Jim Jones scores again as Lou Stout, Jerry Sherman, and Gary DeMarlie close in.

Bill Kelly hauls in a rebound as Jimmy Jones looks on.

Rangers Open With Victory Over D.U.

Playing before an enthusiastic homecoming crowd, the Rangers found difficulty in adjusting to their new offense and nearly had their debut spoiled by Dennis Hodge and Co. Balanced scoring was the order of the day as Jerry Sherman led with 15 points and was followed by Jimmy Jones and Louie Stout with 14 apiece and Ben Wesley with 11 in a 62-60 triumph.

Pioneers Quickly Retaliate

Denver University wasted no time in evening the score as they took the measure of the Hallmen on the following evening by a score of 74-61. The only bright spot in the game for Regis was a Ranger spurt early in the second half, as they outscored D.U. 14 to 4 and thereby enjoyed their last lead of the game. Jones led the team in scoring with 17 points.

Hardin-Simmons Flattened

The insertion of small senior guards Paul Frey and Gary DeMarlie into the Ranger lineup produced a very satisfying victory over Hardin-Simmons. Though Ben Wesley paced his mates with 18 points and Gary DeMarlie, garnered 17, it was the outstanding defensive play of the hustling Frey and DeMarlie that turned the tide and provided the Rangers with their 12 point victory margin, 77-65.

Anytime you want to play, little fella, just call Uncle Louie.

Just what I like—a clean game!

Senior Bill Kelly will be missed by Coach Hall next year, but many battered opponents will rest easier.

How in the hell do you wedge a basketball in the rafters?

Jones launches successfully despite a gentle fist in the mouth.

Stout and Jones battle for the rebound as Jerry Sherman observes.

Lanky Jimmy Jones provided Coach Hall with a pleasant surprise as he emerged as a consistently high scorer and was the driving force behind many Ranger victories.

Jones often found it necessary to go up and over his many opponents, which he did with ease.

Rams Romp Listless Rangers

Add a blistering shooting percentage of 57 to a corresponding poor percentage for the Rangers and you have the recipe for a Ram romp. Led by Bill Green and guard Jim Olander, the C.S.U. quintet quickly ran to a half-time advantage of 20 points which they never relinquished, finally winning 78-56.

Truckers Demolish Rangers

The powerful Denver-Chicago Truckers showed no mercy to the charges of Coach Joe Hall as they readily handled them with ease. Jerry Sherman, with 15 points, led an otherwise harmless Ranger lineup. The final score was 98-66.

Dayton + Detroit = Disaster

A pair of games with nationally ranked Dayton and Detroit proved too much for the touring Rangers as they absorbed two defeats in a row. The only satisfaction was found in the performance of diminutive Gary DeMarlie as "the littlest Ranger" turned in performances featuring 17 and 18 points respectively, as the Rangers fell, 62-45 and 81-58.

A Return To Winning Ways

The return of the Regis squad to Denver and their own fieldhouse was accompanied by a return to the victory column as the Knights of St. Michael's College fell before the rusty Rangers. Showing the effects of a Christmas layoff, the Hallmen pulled slowly away to an 18 point victory. Once again Gary DeMarlie led the team as he canned 20 points. Jim Jones hit for 15 and Ben Wesley scored 14 in a 75-57 victory.

Split In Bozemanland

The Rangers journeyed to Bozeman, Montana, and were seeking their first victory on the Montana State court. Sparked by the soaring Wesley's 29 points, the Rangers responded with a 63-59 win.

Injuries hampered the Regis effort on the following night, but 21 points by DeMarlie and 19 from Wesley sustained the Hallmen through the regulation game time. An overtime period saw the Bobcats emerge the victor by an 81-77 score.

Wesleyan Win

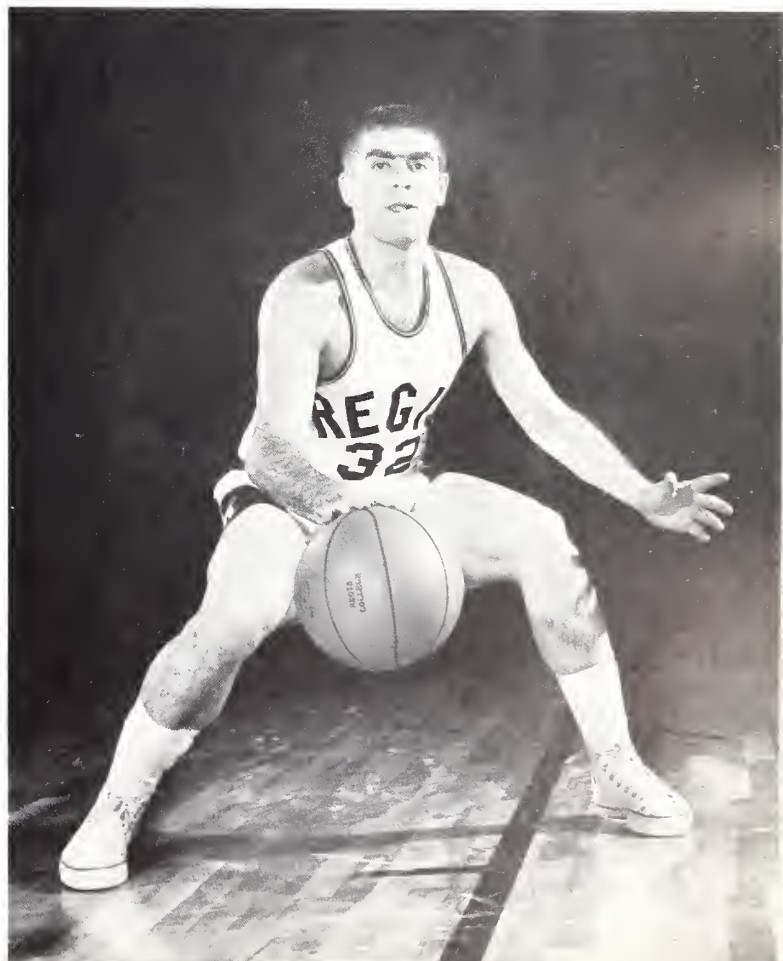

An eastern swing found the Regis squad facing a powerful Kentucky Wesleyan quintet. While Stout and DeMarlie tied for game honors with 19 each, this was not enough as K.W. snatched an 85-75 win.

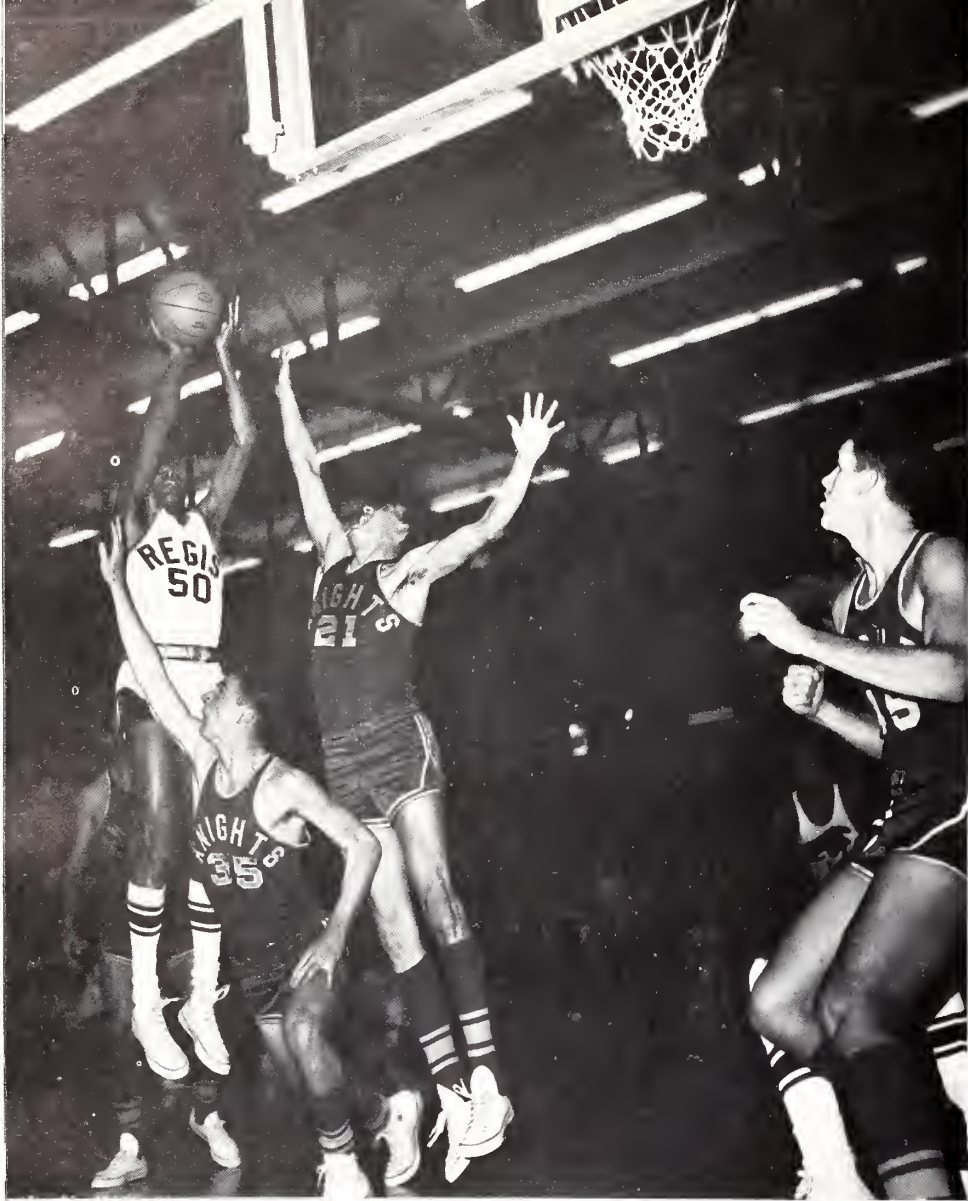

Ken Oswill, transfer from a California junior college, fires away.

Guard Gary DeMarlie was highly praised on the merit of his performances against Detroit and Dayton, as he led the team in scoring and hit nearly 70% of his shots.

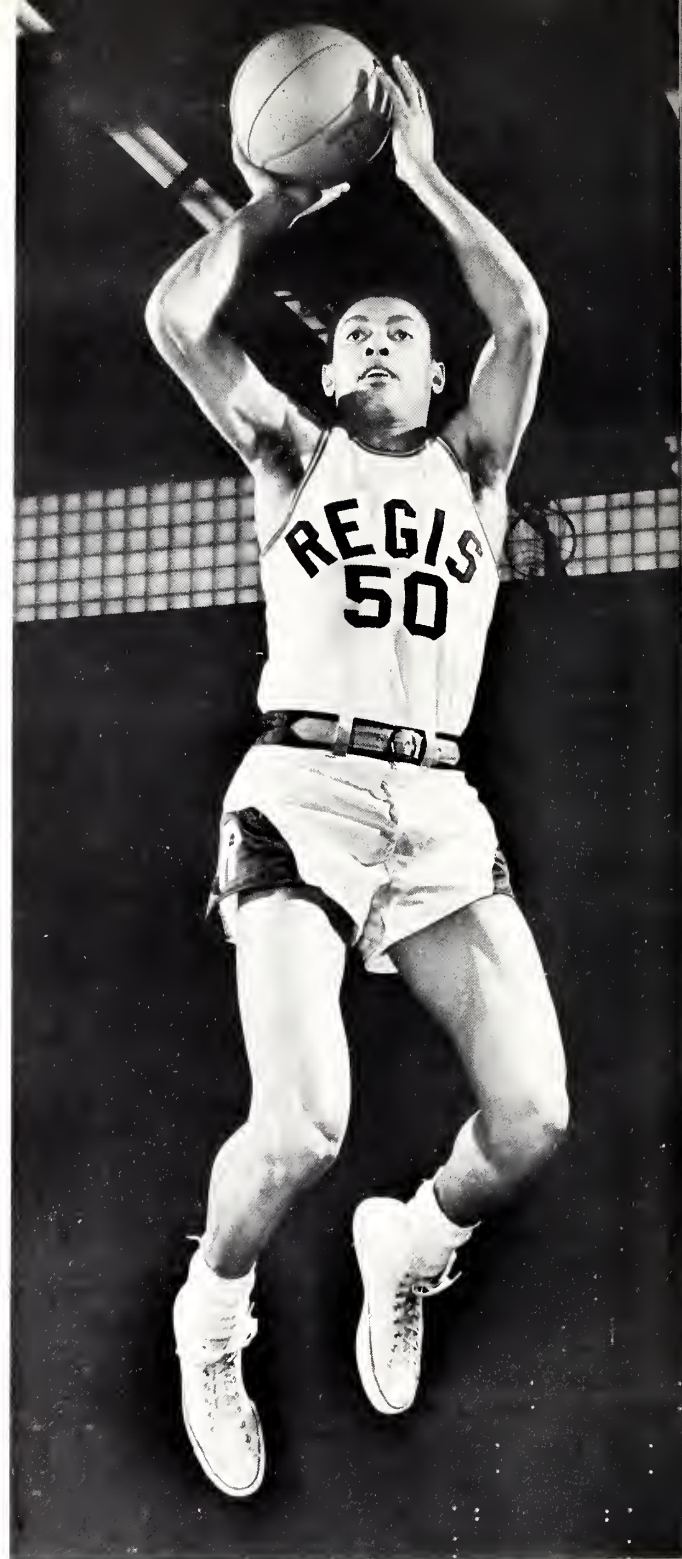

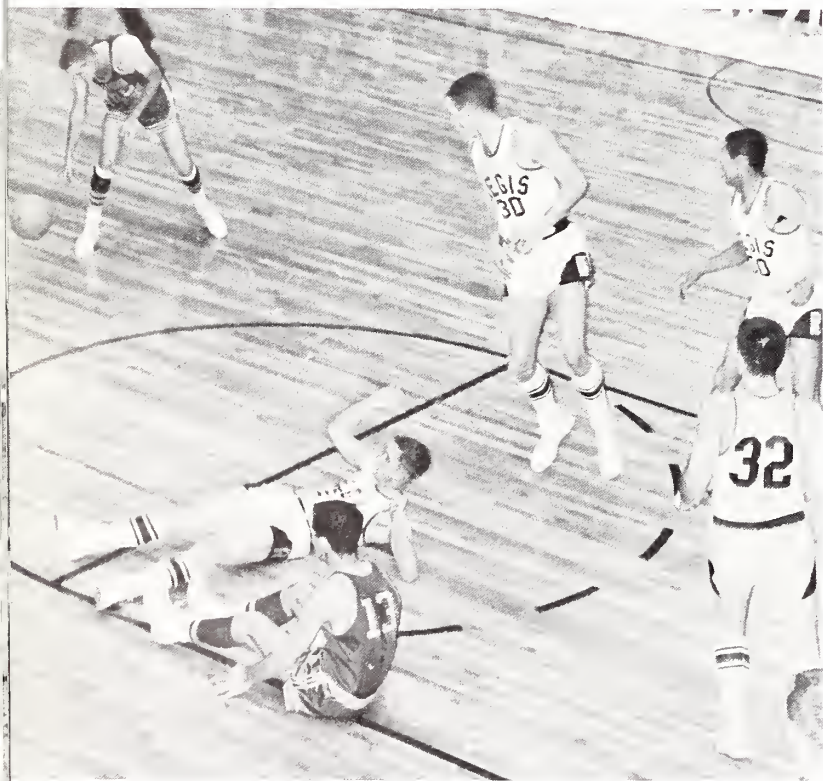

DeMarlie drills, little man, big scorer.

The efforts of two Knight defenders provide no hindrance to high-flying Ben Wesley.

Jerry Sherman, Ben Wesley, and Gary DeMarlie watch as Paul Frey breaks up a St. Michael play.

Sporadically brilliant Ben Wesley often sparked the team with his spectacular board play and variety of shots.

Murray State Duplication

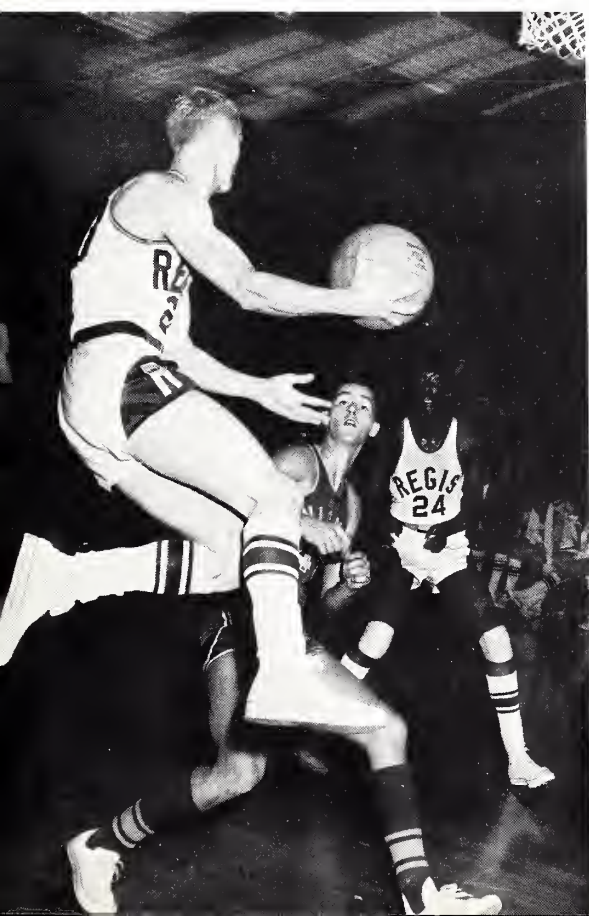

Though the Rangers lost the previous game, it was not indicative of the team effort, as the latter had definitely improved. A close game all the way, it proved a heart-breaker as Murray State pulled away in the waning minutes of the last half to cop a 71-69 victory.

Virtually irreplaceable will be the constant 100% effort of Senior Guard Paul Frey, who seldom relinquished his starting position.

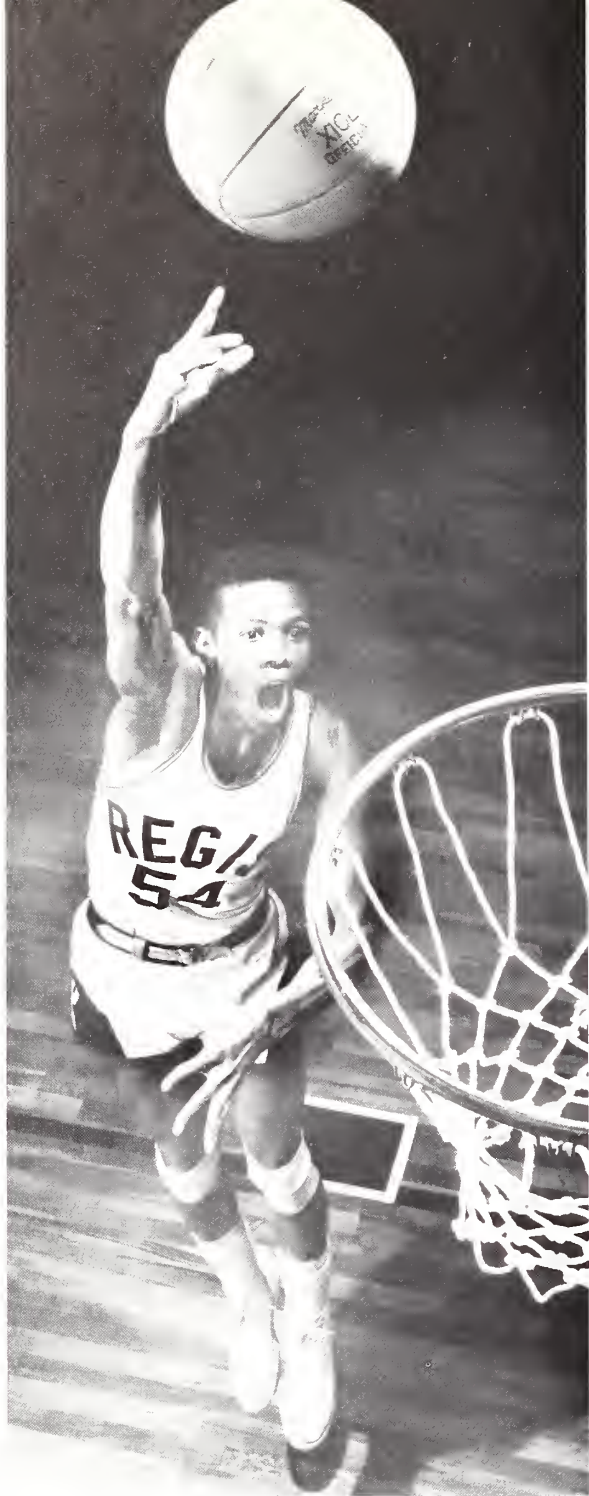

Gee whiz! Real live basketball players!

High-flying Frey, in a blur of overhead lights, prepares for one of his many assists. Jim Jones, number 24, scored on this pass from Frey.

Well above the rim on this shot, Ben Wesley fills the role of "crowd pleaser" with his soaring tip-ins.

Junior Lou Stout sported a 15.9 scoring average for the Hallmen and set a new Regis College record as he poured in 44 points against South Dakota.

DePauw Pawed

As evidence of their new-found spirit of teamwork, the Rangers returned to their familiar stomping grounds and stomped DePauw, 105-69. Wesley and Stout shared game honors with 27 each, and DeMarlie contributed 24.

O.C.U. Proves Too Accurate

A deadeye squad from Oklahoma City University was just a slight bit too accurate from the field as they downed the cold Ranger five by an 80-69 score. Ben Wesley led all scorers with 25 points.

Highland Fling

The first Regis encounter with the New Mexico Highland club brought the Hallmen another victory as the 81-71 win saw Stout hit for 21 and Paul Frey donate 17 more.

Catbird Coddlers Collaborate

The methodical A.F.A. offense was too much for the Hallmen as they fell by a 61-45 score. Lou Stout had 16 points and Bill Kelly scored 12 while pulling in an abundance of valuable rebounds.

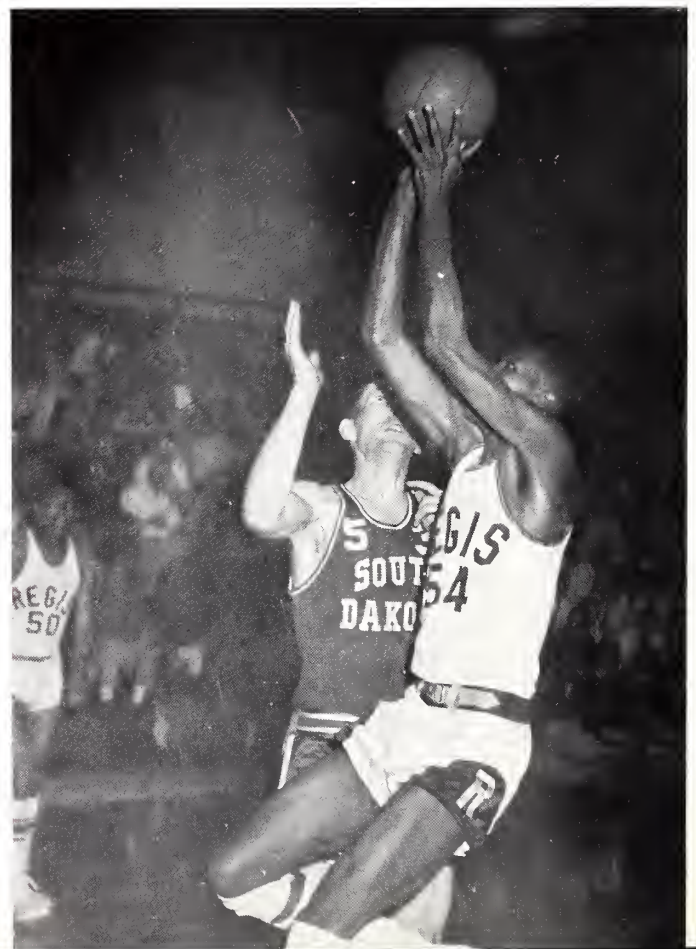

New Mexican Hatdance

The unsuccessful flingers from the Highlands came to the Joe B. Hall Studio of Basketball Ballet in Denver for another lesson. Instructors Stout and Wesley demonstrated a variety of techniques as they led the fired-up Rangers to a 95-74 victory.

Invasion Of The Green Machine

Colorado State University unveiled the greatest athletic invention since shoelaces in Bill Green, but the determined Regis squad refused to take a back seat to anyone and scrapped down to the wire before dropping a 62-58 decision. Stout led the team with 18 points, while Jerry Sherman hit his first six shots and played a good floor game in addition to contributing 17 points.

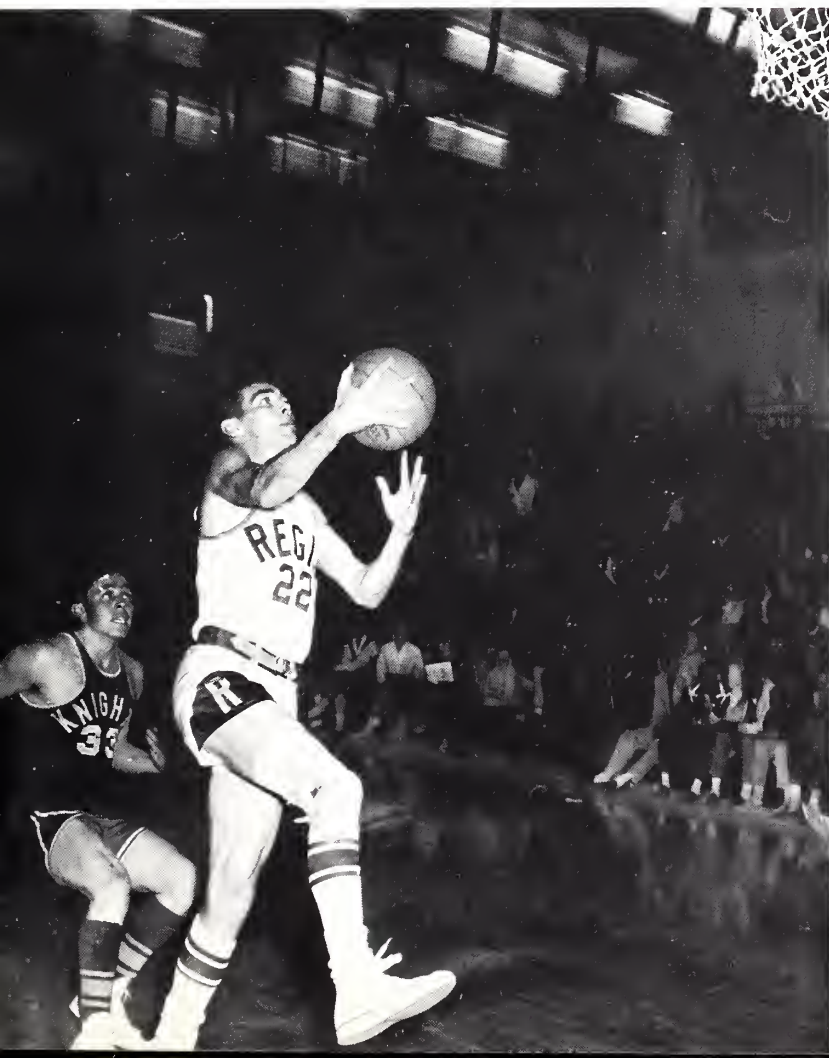

Stout adds two more in his quest for the record.

Senior guard Dick Hoogerverf proved himself a steadying influence by his play when the going got rough for the Rangers.

Speedy Sully steals, scampers, and scores.

Wha Hoppen?

Everything went wrong as the Bobcats of Montana State repaid an earlier Ranger visit. The Hallmen couldn't buy a basket as they played their worst game of the year in losing 74-61.

Same Team?

A rejuvenated squad met the Bobcats the next night and reminded onlookers of the Rangers of old as they crushed the visitors, 94-72. Stout again led all scorers with 32 points, and Sherman plunked in 19.

Westminster Whomped

The raging Rangers continued to devour all in their path as they downed Westminster by a 99-66 score. Ben Wesley led all scorers as he poured in 35 points. Dependable Jerry Sherman again hit for 19.

Platter Shatter

Records were broken all over the field-house as the leading scorers for the Rangers, Ben Wesley and Lou Stout, took this opportunity to enter their names in the Regis record book. Stout drilled in 44 points to erase a 1955 record set by Mickey Shannon. Wesley then snatched his 28th rebound, to obliterate the old record of 27, which was held by Stout. As an anticlimax, the Rangers won, 93-63.

Junior guard Dean Sullivan was invaluable on defense and broke up many opponent's offense with his alert ball-hawking.

Dan Hoskins heads for home.

REGIS SKI TEAM

This year a ski team was re-established at Regis College. Members trained every weekend to represent the school in the various meets sponsored by the Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association.

The team participated in nine meets this year, never scoring an individual win, but several times winning on the basis of unofficial cumulative team points.

Under coach Meta Andel, the Alpine team set up slalom runs and climbed between runs. On this segment of the team were Mark Earley, Dan Hoskins, Bert Liebmann, Frank Malavar, Morrill Murphy, Chuck Torinus, and Jack Wallner.

Tim Copps and Bert Liebmann worked out reasonable jumping form and Winter Park in preparation for next year's competition.

The future? Coach Andel thinks it quite bright. "We have the Alpine material—it only needs development."

The course is set, the timers are ready, and the team is in the starting gate. The Rangers are on the trail to ski power.

FRESHMAN

BASKETBALL

Freshman Coach Presley F. Askew found himself beset by an unusual set of circumstances in his first assignment at Regis. Whereas the previous policy had been to partially combine the Varsity and Freshman squads, Askew set himself the task of putting together a team composed entirely of Freshmen.

His efforts in this regard were extremely satisfactory and his charges compiled a respectable record against local college and service teams.

ACTIVITIES

A U T U M N

In the fall, the campus is a scene of bustling confusion: the upperclassmen sifting back to the hallowed halls after a rigorous summer on the beach, the bewildered freshman telling an upper-classman he lives in room 230, "Joe Hall," the shock of finding one's friends no longer attending school, and the discovery that they have altered the sprinkling system so as to assure a thorough soaking of all Regis men.

As one enters the portals of his dorm, he realizes and appreciates these fleeting follies for the last time: the shiny and polished floors, the prefect's cheerful grin, clean and pressed clothes, being faithful to the girl back home, an ample supply of money, lots of mail, summer's beautiful tan, and no hours.

Following the frenzy of registration, one settles down to the monotony of class work and the diversion of socializing at the various get-togethers. At this point the student anticipates free freshman labor, new feminine acquaintances, bigger and better F.A.Cs., class elections, the "twist," new and wilder "woodsies," local football games, securing decor from fellow classmate's rooms, day student parties, late hours of study, and most important—coming vacations.

So starts another school year as these fall activities find realization by the students during the autumn days on the Regis campus.

Yup, I'ma go'n to pin her today.

This could be the start of something big.

INITIATION

In the tradition of Regis, the new freshmen arrived on Campus in time to adequately participate in the Freshman week program. Bewildered but undaunted, they eagerly sampled the varied tastes provided by their new endeavors. The agenda guided them to the Field House for the Orientation Speech, the formal welcome and encouragements. The trials began with their first encounter with the ever-present upperclassmen.

Constantly harassed by the shroud of mystery that surrounded tales of the forthcoming hike and other activities, the Frosh fought their way through placement exams, advisory conferences, and registration. The shroud was finally lifted as the rookies found themselves somewhere to the south of Regis, bound for a local girl's school. Culminating the initiatory period was the gala Freshmen Frolic, with awards going to the leaders of the Freshman Class. They had given their all and were now proudly considered Regis Rangers.

"I don't care what he said; I'm bigger than him so you do what I say!"

FRESHMEN FROLIC

The excitement of initiation drew to a close with the annual Freshman Frolic. This year's event was held in the ballroom of the Shirley Savoy Hotel, with a large and festive group enjoying the music.

One of the highlights was the presentation of awards to the freshmen. Leo Tierney was voted Most Spirited Freshman, Richard Schoenherr well earned the Most Humorous trophy, and Frank Forest copped the honor of being Most Cooperative in his class.

Beauty prevailed at the dance in the persons of five lovely Freshman Sweetheart candidates. Miss Dorthy Dingman was popularly selected to reign as Sweetheart of the Class of 1965. Her royal court consisted of: Carol Albers, Judy Held, Terry Nelsen and Cordy Rubens.

Dancing was the order of the evening.

HALLOWEEN

MASQUERADE

The night of October 31st provided an opportunity for the student body of Regis and their dates to escape, for a night at least, the cares and tensions accumulated through the past months of studying and exams. Probably attended by more blind date couples than any other event, the various masquaraded pairs gathered at the Colorado Grange Building where the Halloween Dance was again sponsored by the brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma.

A new system of judging was established enabling everyone attending the event to see the costumes which were scavanged from all over the Denver area. "Bear" McDaniel and crew, faced with the difficult task of judging the costumes, finally selected Carl Sullivan and his date who came masquaraded as Freddy Flintstone complete with a stone age car. Additional cash prizes were also awarded by the Brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma.

I tell you that cop looks familiar.

On November 10, the Brothers of the Gamma Sigma Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, presented the Fifteenth annual "Presentation Ball," at the elegant Brown Palace Hotel. To the music of Fred Ringuist, six beautiful queen aspirants were presented to the glittering crowd.

Representing Alpha Kappa Psi, and escorted by Mike Sheahan, was the beautiful native of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Miss Elaine Leroux. The Denver Club's vivacious Susan Petri whose home is Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was escorted by Richard Ostberg. The Italian Club presented the only working girl, and native of Denver, Colorado, the charming Miss Andrea Ruscio, who was escorted by Mike Bisenius. Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity offered a cute "Southern Belle" from Memphis, Tennessee, in the person of Miss Jeanette Ward, escorted by Bob McCartney. A lovely, dark haired deb, from Kansas City, Missouri, Miss Joanne Dehner, was the Benchwarmer's entry. The Irish Club's lass was Miss Jan Deschner from Aberdeen, South Dakota, who was escorted by Laverne Bintner.

Thus, the various organizations, on behalf of their beautiful candidates, began weeks of intensive campaigning which would terminate with the ascendency of a new Queen of Regis.

BUS

On November 17th and 18th, at the Bonfils Memorial Theater, the Regis College Playhouse presented William Inge's prize-winning comedy, "Bus Stop."

The play concerns the efforts of Bo Decker, a rowdy Montana cowboy, to persuade Cherie, a singer from Kansas City, to return to his ranch with him. Unable to peacefully convince her to accompany him, Bo resorts to kidnapping the girl. All is going well for the cowboy until the bus on which they are travelling is stopped by a raging blizzard, and the passengers are forced to disembark at a desolate bus stop in the middle of Kansas. Once off the bus, Cherie is able to get assistance from the local sheriff to protect her from Bo's advances. The rest of the play deals with Bo's attempts to peacefully persuade Cherie to return home with him.

The cast included John Desmond, Rowena Stauffer, Dan McNally, Sue Simone, Jim McCabe, Carol Conley, Rich Feely, and John Mahoney. The sets were designed by Jim Schmit. The play was produced by Jim Curtan and directed by A. J. Deeman, S.J.

W I N T E R

The annual deluge of snowflakes, marking the winter season in the Rockies, brings with it a new challenge to the ever dextrous Regis Ranger. The maintenance of equilibrium on icy sidewalks replaces the frustration caused by the local sprinkling systems, and efforts wasted in the avoidance of the same. Showered with attention are the previously ignored frosh, as campus politicians badger them to vote for the "right" Queen Candidate.

As the snow increases, so does the vastly expanding number of plaster casts that were gained heroically on the ski slopes of western Colorado. The Ranger by this time has accustomed himself to the empty mail box, the supper meals served as only the cafeteria can serve them, the well known residents cubicle and the idiosyncracies of his roommate. Nevertheless, how ever well adjusted the student might be, always one thought strikes fear and terror into his meek little heart, "finals." In wild preparation for the coming semester, temporarily ignoring the impending disaster of the present, he fights his way through pre-registration. Half oblivious to the Queen Candidate posters he finds his way out of Loyola and stumbles blindly back to his den.

Some leisure time is spent enjoying an extravagant Christmas Festival, and then a few weeks at home where the Ranger finds homey warmth and Yuletide greetings and cheer which are not beyond his realm of appreciation.

In the next few weeks, the time seems to disappear, with only brief memories of a Queen being crowned, class officers being elected for the coming year and finals, being painfully completed.

The season is brought to an appropriate close with the students committing themselves to religious endeavors. The student retreat supplies the Regis Man with an occasion to replenish his spiritual stability and to realize the real meaning of a Catholic Education.

After an absence of several years, Homecoming returned to the Regis College campus. Under the direction of the Administration, the Student Senate and the Benchwarmers, this event proved to be highly successful and showed promise for the future. On November 31st, the student body held a pep rally to raise spirit for the all important contest between the neighborhood rivals, Regis and Denver University. On December 1st, the alumni and the students crowded into the student center for a clam bake banquet. Here the alumni renewed old acquaintances and reminisced with their former instructors. After dinner the alumni and the student body joined forces and migrated to the fieldhouse to witness the Rangers fire-up to defeat the Pioneers, 62-60.

Upon completion of the game, the students and the alumni parted and attended their respective dances; the alumni dance was held at the Olin Hotel while the students "twisted" at the Center bringing the Homecoming to a close.

Now son! as I told you before, it's constancy in your attitude and consistency in your work!

CORONATION BALL

During a campaign in which Regians were bombarded with a barrage of posters, button-holed with carnations, supplied with the ever present free cigarettes, and shown beautiful colored slides of the Rocky Mountains, students found themselves in a quandry trying to decide which of the lovely young beauties should receive their votes for Queen of Regis. Throughout a hectic day of balloting, panic-stricken campaign engineers hustled around the campus, ears cocked, hoping to catch some rumored indication of how their candidate was faring at the polls: anxious moments spent for a revelation not to be made until . . .

Despite the carefully concealed Valley Country Club, a large number of Regis students and their dates, in their eagerness and anticipation, managed to find it and enjoy a delightful evening of dancing to the music of Glenn O. Stocking and his band.

As the evening wore on to its climax, the tenseness of the crowd mounted as it eagerly awaited the moment of coronation of the next Queen of Regis. Walking gracefully to the platform with their tuxedoed escorts, the six dazzling candidates nervously smiled, waiting for the announcement of the winner. A resonating chord sounded in the band, and then . . . the winner! Miss Andrea Ruscio of Denver, candidate of the Regis Italian Club, Queen of Regis for 1961-62.

Through the diligent efforts of the brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma the annual Coronation Ball proved one of the most successful and pleasant social evenings of the year.

Say, have ya seen that muff around here?

Everything was tied up at the dance.

Every dance has its crowded moments.

They say he fainted, but we know different.

Elwood! It's two dabs, not five!

Miss Andrea Ruscio

THE QUEEN OF REGIS

Following weeks of strenuous campaigning, the various candidates for the coveted title of Queen of Regis stood nervously on the stage of the Valley Country, anxiously awaiting the announcement by Fred Albi which would tell one of them that she had been selected by Regis men as their Queen. The voicing of the name of Miss Andrea Ruscio capped the colorful efforts of the Regis Italian Club and placed yet another fitting selection on the throne vacated by Miss Carol Scuderi, last year's Queen.

A pert 5'1", Andrea frequently flashes a charming smile, thereby captivating once more her many admirers. The petite brunette favors outdoor sports, especially horseback riding. A lover of fine music, Miss Ruscio plans a recording debut later in the year. Marriage plays no immediate role in the future of Andrea, as she intends to enroll at the University of California and major in Psychology.

Andrea Ruscio is surrounded by a few of her many admirers.

Andrea is seated at the Honors Banquet with Fr. Finucane, Ed Feulner, and Dave Cullan.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

"O Holy Night" is sung by the Saint Joseph's High School choir, one of the nine local high school choirs who performed at the College Fieldhouse.

The Rev. Francis Bakewell S. J. addressed the crowd on the need of re-evaluating the meaning which the Christmas Season has progressively assumed.

At seven thirty on the evening of December fourteenth, The Regis College fieldhouse was the scene of the first annual Archdiocesan Christmas Festival, featuring nine choirs from the Denver area. The program opened with Adeste Fidelis by the massed choir, followed by other Christmas hymns by each of the groups present.

Taking part in the festival were choirs from the following Denver parochial high schools: The Cathedral Male Vested Choir, Machbeuf High School, St. Francis De Sales High School, Marycrest High School, Mullen High School, Mt. Carmel High School, Holy Family High School, St. Mary's Academy, and St. Joseph's High School.

The Rev. Francis F. Bakewell, S. J., of Regis High School, delivered the key address of the evening, stressing the true reality of Christmas as opposed to the meaning (or lack of meaning) that this season has assumed in recent years.

The festival itself closed with Solemn Benediction celebrated by the Most Rev. David M. Maloney, Auxiliary Bishop of Denver, assisted by Rev. Walter M. Lander, S. J., of Regis High School, and Rev. Matthew R. Lynch, S.J., of Regis College. Following Benediction, students and guests gathered at the Student Center for coffee, deeply impressed with the spirit of the season.

This first Christmas Festival proved to be a great success, with all concerned looking forward to similar fine performances in the years to come.

Benediction is offered to the crowd by the Most Reverend David Maloney which brought to a close the colorful, carol filled Festival.

SKI

The fall of the first snow brings with it the puzzled look which means "I wonder when I can ski?" Friday afternoon produces a series of wrenched necks as the aspiring slopesters scan the sky searching for the next snowflake. Saturday morning reveals the inadequacy of human nature as formerly-warm Regis men crawl out of bed and attempt to carry skis, boots, poles, a hat, gloves, and a variety of other necessities with two measly hands.

Fully awake by the time they arrive at the ski area, The Regians receive an injection of enthusiasm as the pulling on of boots signals better things to come. The trip down the slope seems drastically out of proportion to the long ride up, but that makes no difference to the true skier.

The jaunt home is punctuated by one or more stops at any of a number of refueling spots along the way. The latest techniques concerning just about anything are found in abundance after the hot wine begins to flow.

Once back on campus, a quick glance reveals those less fortunate who have broken one or more bones. A ski-cluttered lawn in front of the Student Center evidences yet another successful ski trip with Colorado Women's College.

STUDENT

The opportunities for the spiritual development of the Regis man underwent quite a change this year as private retreats at the Jesuit retreat house at Sedalia were opened to the students. Many sacrificed a weekend to avail themselves of this unusual privilege and those who did so returned to the campus with the feeling of a weekend well spent.

On-campus retreats were also held this year. Freshmen and Sophomores were led in spiritual endeavors by Father John E. Naus, S.J., from Saint

The closed retreats at Sedalia were made possible through the efforts of Father Bocklage, S.J., and to him is due the credit for the complete success of this endeavor.

Underclassmen retreat master, Rev. John Naus S. J., considered the most important aspect of man's life—his final end and the means to attain it.

MEMORIES

Oh-oh, I'm forever blowing bubbles.

What do you mean I missed my 8, 9, 10, and 11 classes?

Ah-ah-ah, let's see. By your horoscope today, you will hide your face from reality.

They can kick sand in my face on the beach, but this "Melon-head" stuff has got to go.

"Say, what do you guys think about girl cheerleaders next year?"

"After all this, I had better not find some ARRIBA on my desk."

S P R I N G

Spring slipped in almost unnoticed as thoughts of Regis men were preoccupied with upcoming quarter exams. Upon completion of same, the frazzled resistance of the weary Rangers proved only too weak when tempted by warm spring breezes.

A new "Colorado Land Rush" tipped off the season as the Regians migrated to the land of the antlered ones for their annual battle with the Birds. Robust spirit manifested at this game took the form of displaced aggression as the campaigns for Student Senate Executive Board offices raged on the propaganda plastered campus. Friendships were renewed at the Inaugural Ball as the Owl feathered his newly-acquired nest with executive personnel under the watchful eyes of the retiring officers.

Everyone was born in Dublin as the appearance of shamrocks, green beer, green attire, green noses later turned fire red, and disappearance of greenbacks highlighted the annual Saint Patrick's Day Ball.

After the clearing of the Irish mist resulting from the day of the Dubliners, a myriad of unexplainable incidents tested the ingenuity of the campus detectives. Borrowed or loaned clothes reappeared without warning or threat, Rangers turned cleaners, found that their windows really were clear glass, desk tops finally parted company with cigarette ashes, and the last remnants of pizza were freed from the ceiling. A trip down the hall required the ability of a swivel-hipped halfback as Regians found that they had extracted two hundred thousand cubic feet of just about anything from a room half that size and were unable to replace it.

Woolen pants were mothballed as a premature appearance was made by bermuda shorts. Berkeley Park became the Regis Extension as future Olympic stars lofted everything from footballs to C.W.C. girls. Skis were mournfully waxed for the last time and gently placed in the corner that formerly held then-dusty, now-shiny golf clubs.

As approaching final exams hovered ominously over the heads of the hastily tanned Rangers, the Regians were driven deeper into unexplored mountain hideouts, armed with the knowledge of the inevitable. Ranger Day drew an even larger crowd than expected and casually clad Rangers perused the campus absolutely devoid of any ambition.

The approaching storm suddenly dumped its academic contents on the partially-prepared Regians who hastily hoisted their intellectual umbrellas, only to find them hopelessly riddled with unmendable holes. Riding the crest of the graduation wave, the Seniors soon discovered themselves inundated by credit deficiencies and, anyway, what's so bad about a career with your modern Army?

SPRING CANDIDS

He just had to make a pit stop outside Fr. Malecek's office.

"Not a bad way to waste time is it?"

"We'd better dry clean this one, or it'll shrink again."

"It looks like this is the last for this pitcher."

Regions flock to Ranger Day activities.

"Make it fast, I gotta git down to the F.A.C."

The important whispers always come when you dance.

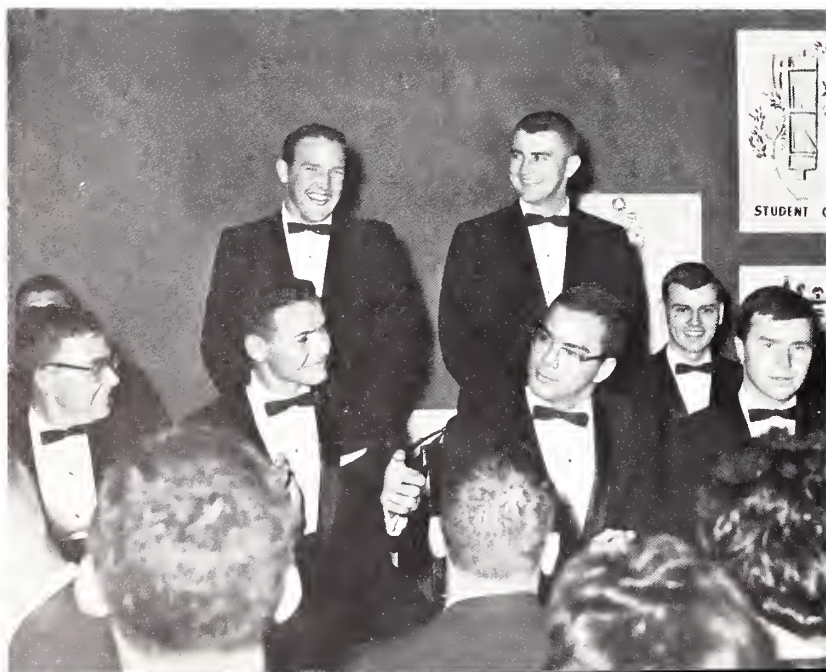

Another old Executive Board takes a back seat to the new

"Let's have a round of applause for the old Board!"

"For the TENTH time, will David 'Ben' Yezzi please stand up!"

INAUGURAL

On February 16 the outgoing Executive Board hosted the Student Body at the Second Annual Inaugural Ball. This event, once again held in the two main ballrooms at the Shirley-Savoy, functions as the official turn-over of powers and duties of the new and old student administrations.

Climaxing ten frantic days of avid campaigning, which saw the two parties distributing free cowbells, calendars of events, and debating the practicality of their respective platform points, this event serves as due recognition for the efforts of the new officers, and enables the Student Body to publicly thank the former board members for their unstinting efforts on behalf of the school.

"I've got you, and troubles I don't even know about!"

"You told me you weren't going out tonight!"

It takes Scotch twelve years to age, ahh. . . .

BALL

At the Inaugural Dinner, which preceded the dance, the members of both boards and the General Assembly were honored and were given an idea of what lies ahead for the coming year for Student Government and the school.

The dance itself saw short addresses being given by outgoing prexy Cullan and incomer Feulner, and an introduction of the members of both boards.

Entertainment was provided by Ray Kemp for the traditionalists and Ronny ('Bonfire') Kaye for the twisters. Because of the success of the dance, it will be remembered by the student body as one of the social highlights of the year.

"Baby, I'm untouchable!"

"Did I forget to brush my teeth?"

LECTURE

REVEREND BERNARD LEEMING, S. J., author of "The Churches and The Church" opened the Regis College Lecture Series with an authoritative interpretation of the role of the Church in the upcoming Ecumenical Movement. Father Leeming taught dogmatic theology at Heythrop College, Oxford, England, for nearly 20 years. The head of the Regis Philosophy, Father Klocker, became acquainted with Father Leeming and his works while the former was serving as visiting scholar lecturer at Heythrop.

Father Bernard Leeming, S. J., flanked by Fathers Ryan and Hoewischer, discusses his upcoming lecture.

MR. MICHAEL E. ENDRES considered the prevailing positions on values in sociological theory and research and the developing trends in the methodology of social research. Holding degrees from Aquinas College and Notre Dame University, Mr. Endres is an instructor in sociology and acting head of the department at Regis College.

Following his lecture on Urban Development, Samuel Zisman spoke privately to many students.

Regis' own Michael Endres provided the second offering in the Lecture Series.

MR. SAMUEL B. ZISMAN, campus planner for Regis College, presented a scholarly discussion on space-structure relationship and the problems of planning. A graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mr. Zisman is a full member of the American Institute of Planning and a Research Associate for the Rockefeller Foundation.

SERIES

REVEREND JOHN WALSH S. J., the only priest ever to receive a Ph.D. from the drama department of Yale University, returned to his alma mater to deliver an address on the American Theater. Basing his beliefs on the adequate portrayal of reality, Father Walsh furnished Regis students with interesting and unusual insight into the nature of the American theater.

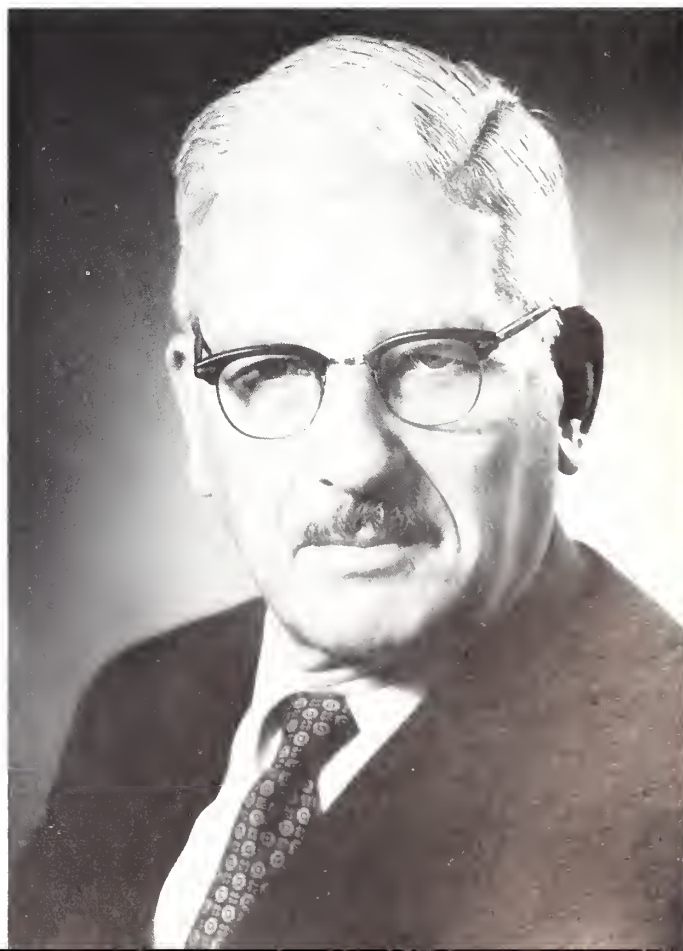

"Why portray the closets and bedrooms of reality?" queried Fr. Walsh.

Frs. Maginnis, and Hoewischer discuss scriptural interpretation with Fr. Stanley.

REVEREND DAVID M. STANLEY S. J., a noted Canadian Jesuit scholar of scripture, professor, author, and lecturer, enlightened Regians on the new insight gained in relation to Scripture via the development of form criticism. Father Stanley is now lecturing at the State University of Iowa on both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, author of several works on Austria and international law, delivered the final lecture of the year.

DR. KURT von SCHUSCHNIGG, ex-Chancellor of Austria and last defender of the old Hapsburg Austro-Hungarian monarchy, aired his views on Central Europe in the cold war. Dr. von Schuschnigg was imprisoned at Dachau by the Nazis and freed in 1945. A scholar of Austrian political and constitutional history, he has continued his literary work in this country.

RANGER DAY

Ranger Day at Regis commenced with Mass which was sung by a choir composed of members of the Irish Regis Association. Afterwards, a box luncheon was served and eaten on the lawn as participants dodged anything from flying saucers to baseballs. Junior grade John Glenns tried their luck on the trampoline as one of the local pigs was smeared with grease in preparation for a game of chase.

A series of races, both foot and tricycle, proved the superiority of C.W.C. girls in more than one respect. Alpha Kappa Psi again furnished Regis men with a mock version of Las Vegas, and an extremely successful one at that.

While some people were losing their money in the A.K.Psi Casino, others were losing their minds at the talent show being held in the field house across the campus.

Activities moved outside again as a track meet was held on the football field. Members of most clubs on campus fielded teams and the efforts of these men proved very interesting.

The next stop on the entertainment trail proved to be the best one as Rho Chi Sigma presented the Taylors, a well-known trio of merry-makers from a Denver night club. The tremendous success of this group was matched by the general enthusiastic response to Ranger Day as the participants left the Regis Fieldhouse and headed for a dance in the Student Center sponsored by the Brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity. Another Ranger Day scores high on the success list.

Regis "fans" become hysterical while watching the satellite take off

Regis attempts to place its intercampus satellite into orbit.

"Fish" proves that his "P.F. Flyers" will never fail him.

Ranger Day brings to campus the Las Vegas—Reno atmosphere.

....“Hey ladi ladi lo” “I know a girl that”

This guy is the only writer go'in that insists he be on stage while I tell the jokes.

SPRING

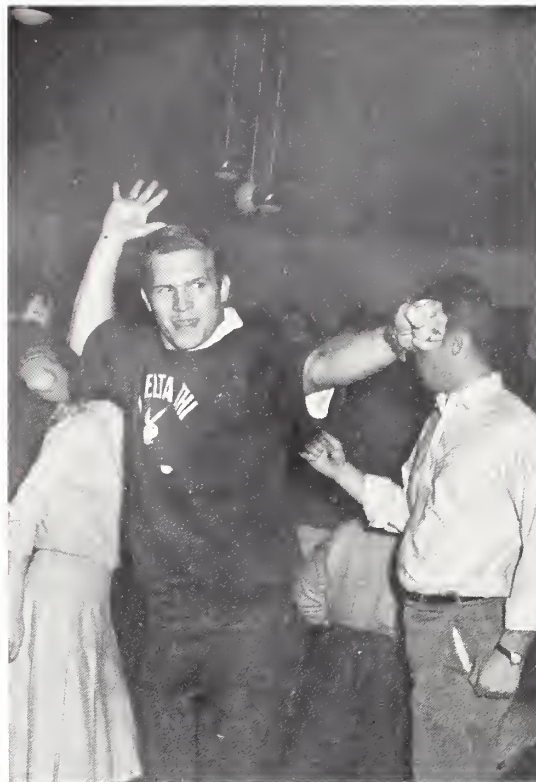

"Will ya ask those guys to play another chorus of 'ladi ladi,'

"Ski movie! What ski movie?"

You'd better not! I'm the fastest gun in the West.

"Zap! whatever you are."

Okay, you got the last one. Now guess what I am.

Truer words were never written.

"Maybe I don't, but you've got what it takes."

SEQUEL

"I don't know what it is . . . but it's the greatest!"
 "Gee Mary Lou, I just can't see getting married now. Ask me later."

"Now you guys know that you shouldn't BRING these girls down here. They deserve better than this."

BAN takes the worry out of being close.

"...and she's got a F-I-N-E personality."

"Boy, I guess he sucked me in for a free one!"

"Correction, gadies and lentlemen. Number 25 . . ."

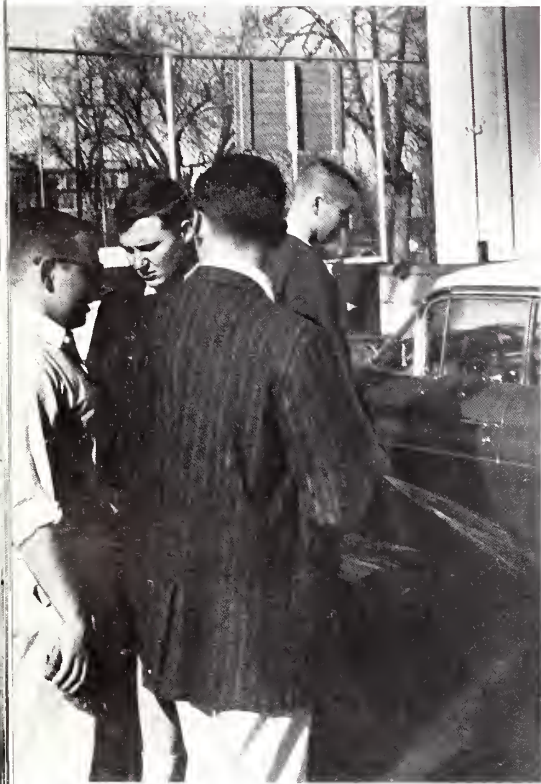

RANGER

"But I'm a pretty big deal. I wrote all the captions for the RANGER."

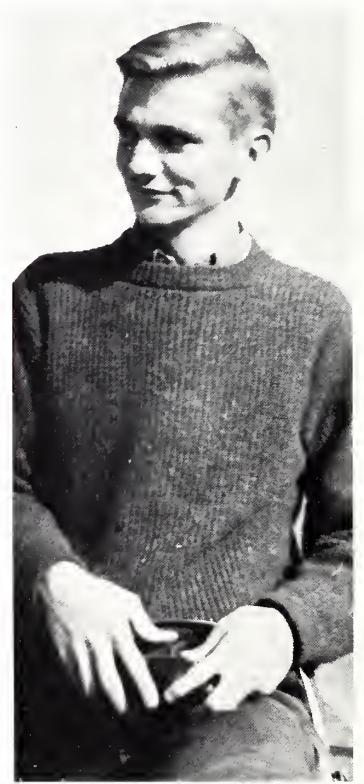

"Tell us you're cool. Tell us you're cool."

What's this about them turning the water off on us?"

"I told you not to come in here. Now go out-side and wait in the car."

If you had feathers you'd look like a falcon.

I always get the best bridge hands when I play poker!

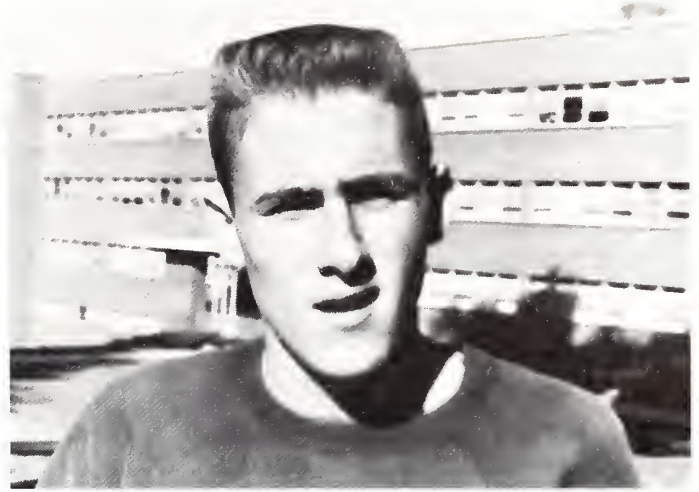

"All I said was sling a little mud, and some of it will stick."

RAMBLINGS

Yea, that's right! Feulner, McNamara, Riff, Albi, Lawler, Kiefer, and Fisher have all quit.

"Cabby, what was your first reaction to winning the G.R.O.T.Y. award?" (Gym Rat Of The Year)

Another successful Benchwarmer spectacular.

We have been requested that the car bearing Nebraska license plate, numbering 65-4338, be removed from the cocktail lounge by the owner.

What kind of BUSINESS is this!

"There it is! The Valley Country Club!"

"I don't see how all this junk will ever get back in the room. I guess I'll wait till next year, and have a freshman do it."

Here he stands—a man yet unfinished—for he is aware that his education has only begun, conscious that he is now a student of Life's greatest teacher. The beckons him . . . he is ready.

M.E.C.C.A.

They told Orville Wright that he would never get his brainchild off the ground, but his problems were fairly simple compared to those members of M.E.C.C.A. Known to those interested as Maginnis' European Collegiate Cultural Association, the name may have been misleading in its reference to the city of Mecca, but there was nothing misleading about the purpose of the tour.

A relatively smooth plane flight to Shannon, Ireland deceptively concealed the unforgettably turbulent experiences which were to come. Members of Father Boyle's courses concerning the works of James Joyce gloried in the fact that they had already memorized a man of Dublin and were familiar with many streets and houses mentioned in the works of this man. The visit made by some to Clongowes Wood served only to stir the memory of those familiar with the artist.

History students flailed their companions as the Tower of London and Mme. Tussaud's House of Wax recalled former days of glory. They further expounded on the respective merits of the Maginot Line as the roving Rangers made their camp under the shadows of the crumbling hulks. Language students found themselves in demand and the dialects of thirteen different countries wrought havoc on the hardy campers.

Those adherents to the classical school discovered that there simply was not enough time to inhale the cultural opportunities offered by the myriad of institutions ranging from The Royal Festival Hall in London to the Louvre in Paris and the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam. The Salzburg Festival attracted many of the Regians with names such as George Szell of Cleveland Symphony fame. An audience with Pope John XXIII at Castelgandolfo was followed by a rapid trip over winding Italian roads to visit the Father General of the Society of Jesus, John Baptist Janssens. All were spellbound by trips through the Black Forest and a long ride on a Rhine steamer.

The trip itself was by no means brief, covering nearly 6,000 miles and a period in man's civilization which was thereafter more important to all concerned. Due credit must be given to the leadership of Father Maginnis, whose fluency in a variety of languages and knowledge of the countries resulting from many years of study in same enabled the touring Rangers to glide smoothly over many of the difficulties encountered by most tourists.

Edwin J. Feulner Jr. and a former Regis student patiently awaited in the Coliseum in Rome for movie teams to arrive after it was rumored that the producer would offer 2 livae for bit actors to drive chariots.

Members of MECCA, (Maginnis European Collegiate Cultural Association) pose before their flight to Shannon, Ireland the jumping off point for the 6,000 mile European Tour.

Very Rev. John Baptist Janssens, S.J., Father General of the Society of Jesus graciously granted a personal interview to the Regis College students at Frascati, Italy.

Florence, the cultural center of the world, fascinated the touring students with its vast collection of arts which have continued to withstand both the ravages of man and time and indeed in the case of the latter have only grown more beautiful!

ONE LAST

MOMENT

before all is said and done.

How little did I foresee that this, the final page of the 1962 RANGER, would prove to be the most difficult of the pages to write. However, sitting here in reflection of the past months has made me realize what a lonely, dreary, and indeed impossible task would have been the publication of this yearbook without the contributions of the staff members who sacrificed so generously their time and so unselfishly their talent in this endeavor. It was solely through their efforts that this RANGER was first conceived, and then to be sustained until now it has finally become realized.

How many packages of cigarettes were smoked during the course of the book's progression would be impossible to estimate as well as the countless cups of coffee consumed. A significant number of multicolored bottle caps and Frito bags also managed to occupy a prominent position among the heaps of first, second, and third drafts of copy abundantly seasoned with a multitude of hazy pictures all of which were meticulously filed in confusion on the floor of the RANGER office.

Not always did we operate as would a perfectly running, well oiled machine. As copy writers became well acquainted with the technique of page layouts, section editors found that an old hanger, bent into a certain shape, known only to them, sufficed to open the darkroom door into a fascinating world where a maze of buttons, levers, and dials enticed inquisitive and dexterous fingers, the product of which, strangely enough, were pictures suitable for presentation in the yearbook. Thus, photographers, finding their domain barred to them, searched elsewhere to occupy their meandering interests, but finally found some satisfaction in the art copy writing.

Thus, many times we of the staff found ourselves clinging to opposite poles of agreement, but, somehow, somehow, a compromise was always reached. And so often it was that timely bit of humor that quickly lifted us from the depths of discouragement while now our satisfaction rests safely, (I hope), between its familiar brown and gold covers. Now, the office only echoes all of those joys and sorrows which have slipped into memory, and yet, I am sure, that each member of the staff will always cherish them because these, for us, have become the spirit of this RANGER.

In closing, I wish to extend my personal thanks to all who so generously contributed of themselves toward the production of this yearbook. Congratulations to you all and especially to our Section Editors Fred Albi, Dennis Kiefer and Don Gessler his assistant, Dennis Lawler, Joe McNamara, George Riff, and Joe Lane; and to our Photography Editor Ed Feulner and Burke MacDonald his assistant; as well as to Jim Curtan our copy editor; to Don Mildenberger our Business Manager, and to Jim Fisher, our "Jack of All Trades": to you men, all I can say is "a job well done." I especially wish to thank our Moderator, Father Maginnis for all the counsel he has afforded me during the course of the yearbook's progression. To all of you may I extend a personal note of gratitude and a wish for all possible success in the production of next year's RANGER as well as in all of your future endeavors. But now it is over and we humbly place the product of our efforts into the hands of you on whom the center of our attention has been focused for a year and without whom this yearbook would never have come to be. May it serve you always as a reminder of this sometimes frustrating sometimes gratifying, but always to be remembered college year of nineteen sixty-two.
